FDR Promises End to World Gangsterism

BLASTS AXIS NATIONS FOR BRUTALITY

Tells Nazis, Italians and Japs They'll Learn Secrets of Quebec In Own Language.

TALKS AT OTTAWA

President Optimistic Over War Developments In Pacific Area.

(By United Press)

OTTAWA—President Roosevelt pledged today in a world-wide radio broadcast that the United Nations will, in this war, break up "once and for all," international "gangsterism."

Speaking on the first occasion of an American president's visit to Ottawa the chief executive stood at the entrance of the towering parliament buildings and promised that "absolute victory" by the Allies would bring the world well along the road to "freedom from want."

He warned Germany, Italy and Japan that they would learn the "secret" decisions reached at his Quebec conferences with Prime Minister Winston Churchill in "the only language their twisted minds seemed capable of understanding."

Condemning the Nazis for their "evil . . . inability" to understand the rights of their fellowmen and the "fanatical militarists of Japan" for similar brutal qualities, Mr. Roosevelt told an audience which included 200 members of the Canadian parliament and some 25,000 citizens of Ottawa that:

"We have been forced to call out the sheriff's posse to break up the gang in order that gangsterism may be eliminated in the community of nations.

"We are making sure—absolutely, irrevocably sure—that this time the lesson is driven home to them once and for all. We are going to be rid of outlaws this time."

Citing unanimous belief among the United Nations that only "a

Blocks Pay of 34 Highway Workers Following Probe

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Chairman Gertrude Jones of the state civil service commission today held up wages of 34 unclassified highway department employes in the Cleveland area following an investigation of reported political activities by highway employes in that district.

Miss Jones said that she would investigate the nature of the jobs of these employes to determine whether they should be under classified service for which political activities are prohibited by state law.

Commission investigators Frank Copper and Paul Benton reported to Miss Jones that their two-day investigation of Highway District 12 indicated that "several" unclassified employes carrying on political activities should be in the classified service.

The investigators reported that none of the 53 classified employes

INCOME'S UP

Ohio Farm Products Bring In 27 Per Cent Better Returns.

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— Gross cash income from Ohio's principal agricultural products has increased 27 per cent in the past year, the department of rural economics at Ohio State university reported today.

The department's income index (with 1924–1928 equalling 100) for July, 1943, showed meat animals 241; dairy products 201; grains, 111; poultry and eggs, 169; potatoes, 59; and wool, 160.

STRIKERS RECLASSIFIED

NASHVILLE, Tenn. —(U.P.)— Gov. Prentice Cooper today ordered Tennessee draft boards to reclassify all striking employes at the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft corporation, making them subject for immediate induction into the armed services.

Outside Help Seen as Trio Flees O.S.R.

Believe Licking County Inmates Escaped In Car Driven By Aide.

Believed to have received help from an accomplice on the outside, three Ohio State Reformatory inmates were being sought by police throughout Ohio today following their escape from the institution yesterday.

Superintendent Arthur L. Glattke said it was believed the escape had been plotted and that the trio had an automobile, probably driven by a confederate, waiting for them near the institution dairy barn, where they had been working.

Reformatory guards formed a posse and searched nearby fields for several hours, but found no trace of the trio.

The three fugitives were admitted from Licking county, all on charges of burglary. They are Sam Shrider, admitted Jan. 29, 1940; Russell Allen, 23, admitted Jan. 23, 1940; and Clarence Ramy, 24, admitted Jan. 25, 1939.

It was the second escape from the reformatory in 24 hours. Police were still searching today for Russell Bagley, who walked away from the institution dairy barn early Tuesday morning.

Mansfield detectives found the coat of Bagley's prison uniform outside of a West Fourth street residence at about 8 a. m. Tuesday. It was believed that the fugitive had intended to steal an automobile but was probably frightened away by passing motorists.

The three Licking county fugitives worked in the dairy and horse barns. Glattke said they had probably contacted a confederate, instructing him to have his automobile parked near the institution.

NEW ON PANEL

Shultz Succeeds Beam on Gas Rationing Panel.

Charles N. Shultz, 82 Parkwood boulevard, has been appointed to serve on the gasoline ration board in place of Lydon Beam who resigned last week.

Shultz is a city councilman and was freight agent for the Pennsylvania railroad before he retired several years ago. In resigning Beam said that he did not have sufficient time to spend on board affairs.

Other members of the board are W. J. Spreng, E. J. Wesson, Harry Calhoun and Rex Zediker.

URGE PLAN TO INSURE CATTLE

Veterinaries Propose System To Aid Production.

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)— Health insurance for livestock may be a new field for enterprising agents.

A system of animal health insurance to help the farmer provide better care for livestock and promote more efficient production was suggested in a committee report for presentation today to the war conference of the American Veterinary Medical association.

Watchful public health service was never more urgently needed, the report said. One of the greatest present perils, it asserted, is danger of introducing animal diseases from other countries.

Figures In Detroit Espionage Case

Here are the figures in the sensational espionage case uncovered in Detroit by the FBI. Key figure in the case is Grace Buchanan-Dineen, top, center, 34-year-old descendent of French nobility who, trapped by the FBI, later collaborated in apprehending the others. The others accused are Bertrand S. Hoffman, 27, of Detroit, right, who was arrested in New York where he was stationed with the U. S. merchant marine; Dr. Alfred W. Thomas, 44-year-old surgeon, left, and Theresa Behrens, 44, center below. In addition two unidentified German aliens, both women, were seized by FBI agents in Detroit. The four pictured are accused of sending information to Germany about U. S. naval bases and convoys and location of strategic war plants. The Toronto-born Miss Buchanan-Dineen was specially trained for her role by German espionage experts, the FBI said.

New Sensations Awaited In Baring of Detroit Spy Plot

(By Associated Press)

DETROIT —, Detroit prepared today for expected new sensations from an alleged spy plot hatched against this and other American munition centers but which backfired on its perpetrators in Nazi Germany.

Four women, among them two identified in Federal Bureau of Investigation records as countesses, and a man were held here by the Federal Bureau of Investigation while a second man, a member of the American Merchant Marine, remained in FBI custody in New York.

Two of the women, both arrested as "dangerous enemy aliens," were not identified by the FBI. Authoritative sources, however, said one was a member of a prominent Detroit family. The FBI said she was born in Berlin, held the title of countess and had lived here several years.

The other countess, beauteous Grace Buchanan-Dineen, 34-year-old cosmopolite, was held in $50,000 bond on a charge of giving war information to Germany.

It was she, the FBI said, who, when discovered in her activities, cooperated with the federal authorities to the end that the German espionage got only the information which this government "desired." FBI Chief J. Edgar Hoover said army and navy intelligence scrutinized all her transmissions.

The wife of Dr. Fred William Thomas, 44, Detroit obstetrician

FOUND INSANE

Slayer of Twins Expected To Be Sent To Lima For Life.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Juvenile Court Judge Harry L. Albright of Belmont county today declared Henry W. Hagert, 17, confessed psychopathic killer of twin brothers, is insane and ordered him held to the Cuyahoga grand jury without bond.

Judge Albright said Hagert, who was arraigned on a first degree murder charge in the slaying of James and Charles Collins, 13-year-old twins, probably would be sent by the criminal court to the Lima State hospital for the criminal insane for life.

Hagert admitted shooting and killing the Collins boys and also abducting and holding captive overnight John Buchanan, 9, son of a city health official.

SUSPECTS HELD

Four Persons Linked to Cleveland Stabbing.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Police held four persons today—three men and one woman—for investigation in connection with the murder of Haines E. Ewing, 36, Republic Steel company foreman, who was found stabbed to death in his automobile in a Negro district yesterday.

Police believed that robbery was the motive in the slaying. The three men lived in a rooming house near the scene of the death.

FIREMEN HURT

Chief Among Those Overcome Battling Portsmouth Blaze.

PORTSMOUTH—(INS)—A number of firemen, including Fire Chief Robert Leedom and Capt. Walter J. Lauter, were overcome by smoke in combating a blaze which broke out in the basement of the S. S. Kresge store in downtown Portsmouth today.

Damage to the three story building and contents was mostly from smoke and water.

Zimmerman, Fireman for 23 Years, Named Acting Chief

L. R. Zimmerman, captain in the Mansfield fire department for the past 15 years, today was named acting fire chief to serve until a successor to Chief Charles J. Seeburger is named.

The appointment was made by Service-Safety Director Fred B. Wolff on the day Seeburger's resignation became effective.

Senior captain at Central station and a member of the fire department for nearly 23 years, Zimmerman plans to take the civil service examination for appointment as chief. Although he had received no instructions from the service-safety director about his status until today, Zimmerman has been handling the chief's duties since Seeburger started his vacation two weeks ago.

Meanwhile, another piece of unfinished city business was due for action today. Police Chief Meade K. Bates, who has been trying for two weeks to get a decision on his request for new radio equipment for his department, conferred with Mayor W. J. Locke and the service-safety director, urging that the contract be awarded for the police headquarters and cruiser transmitters.

The city administration has been studying two bids for equipment, but Bates has contended

START REPAIRS ON PARK ROAD

City Workmen Act Within 24 Hours After Criticism In N-J Editorial.

City street workers were busy today repairing the rough entrance to Liberty park, starting the work less than 24 hours after a News-Journal editorial pointed out that the condition of the driveway was a traffic hazard.

Admitting that it was the editorial that prodded the city into action, Street Superintendent C. H. Hebel said the park entrance job had been on his department's summer program, adding that "we just needed a reminder that it should be done before summer is over."

Hebel said he also would attempt to get funds for a new surface on Grace street from Central avenue to the park entrance. Badly damaged last winter, the street was repaired temporarily early in the summer, but it's still too rough for comfortable travel.

Attempting to handle the biggest street program in years this summer, the street department hasn't been able to keep up with

Surprise! Council Finds City Has Curfew Law, Now

City council, which has been studying the proposed enactment of a curfew ordinance in Mansfield, learned today that the city already has one.

Council is not sure, however, that this one is still legally a part of the city's records and can be enforced. City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner was to decide that today.

Passed in May, 1904, when Huntington Brown was mayor, the ordinance prohibited boys and girls under 16 from being on the street alone after 8:30 p. m. and provided a maximum fine of $5 for violations.

It said further that the fire chief "shall cause to be sounded a curfew bell."

Since the city ordinances were revised and codified in 1909, there was a question today of whether the 1904 curfew measure could still be enforced.

Council recently was asked by Mayor W. J. Locke to consider the enactment of a curfew law as a means of helping to solve the city's juvenile delinquency problem.

KELLAND ASKS DEFENSE RING AROUND U. S.

GOP Executive Urges Policy of Collaboration Backed By Preparedness.

WANTS BIG AIR FORCE

Also Calls For Permanent Alliance Between This Country, Britain.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK—Clarence Budington Kelland presented to the Republican party today a post-war foreign policy based on United Nations' collaboration, but added that the United States regardless must ring itself with such a defense that "no nation, no coalition of nations, shall be able to penetrate our fortifications or reach our shores."

Kelland, author, and Republican national committeeman from Arizona, conceded that the collaboration program he proposed might fail, leaving this nation alone to face a hostile world, and declared:

"Come war or peace, come upheaval or revolution, come whirlwind or convulsion, come hell or high water, the United States of America must and shall be made impregnable.

"Our nation must build, and maintain, a fleet the most powerful in the world. Not a two-ocean navy but a five-ocean navy. It must provide itself with an air force so numerous and efficient as to stand alone. It must continue a standing army of sufficient size and training. From this day forth our country must not merely be able to prepare for war, but must stand panoplied, equipped to the last button, and ready for war."

Kelland, who is to speak tonight before the New York County Republican committee, made public this prepared address "the zones of safety plan" in advance of the meeting.

He said his plan would be presented at the Sept. 6-7 meeting of the Republican post-war advisory

YOUTH VOTES?

Young Dems Study Extension of Ballots to 18-Year-Olds.

CHICAGO —(INS)— Measures to extend the ballot to 18-year-olds and to facilitate soldier voting were on the agenda today as the national committee of the Young Democratic Clubs of America opened its two-day meeting in Chicago.

The meeting, the first the Young Democrats have held since their 1941 convention at Louisville, Ky., was expected to draw delegates from at least 25 states on the first roll call. The meeting this year is replacing the convention because of the war.

For the first time in the history of the organization women delegates were expected to hold a majority over the men.

RAF Returns To Batter at Flaming City

Thousands of Danes Parade With U. S. Flags In Anti-Nazi Demonstrations As Russians Turn Foe's Retreat From Kharkov Into a Rout.

(By Associated Press)

German armies retreating in Russia, nightmare wreckage in Berlin, and thousands of anti-Nazi demonstrators parading with American flags in Denmark—these highlighted a composite picture of foreboding for Adolf Hitler today.

Swift RAF Mosquito bombers raided Berlin for the second successive night, the British air ministry announced, and Nazis admitted "nuisance" thrusts at the capital.

Radio France quoted the German underground station "Atlantic" as saying at least 73,000 Berlin residents were left homeless as a result of the RAF's heavyweight attack 24 hours earlier.

In London, Hitler's appointment of Heinrich Himmler, chief of the dread Gestapo, as German minister of the interior was interpreted as a move to keep the home front in line and prevent a sequel to Germany's collapse at the end of World War I in 1918.

Swiss dispatches from Berlin, hinting at the growth of an anti-Nazi movement inside Germany, said Himmler's elevation was "a warning to all wishing to start new political trends."

Strict German censorship still prohibited transmission of news on the bomb damage in Berlin—where an armada of 700 RAF block-buster raiders dropped approximately 2,000 tons of explosives in a "Hamburg" assault Monday night—but returning RAF pilots had already told of a four-square-mile inferno left raging in the heart of the German capital.

Dispatches from Stockholm reported a series of mass demonstrations against German occupation authorities in Denmark. At Odense, 5,000 persons carrying American, British and Danish flags marched through the streets in bold defiance of the Nazis, and similar parades took place in other Danish cities.

More than three German divisions, between 40,000 and 50,000 troops, were reported to have moved into the Danish capital, Copenhagen, from Norway as the Nazis sought to stamp out riots, strikes and spreading sabotage.

So bitter was feeling against the Nazis that girls going with

TOKYO ADMITS HEAVY STRUGGLE

Broadcast Reports American Offensive In Solomons on Big Scale.

(By Associated Press)

Japanese imperial headquarters admitted today in a Tokyo broadcast recorded by the Associated Press that the American offensive centering around New Georgia island in the Solomons was continuing on a scale of considerable magnitude although it insisted all attacks were being repulsed with heavy casualties.

"The enemy offensive cannot be belittled," declared the announcement.

More than 10,000 American troops have been killed or wounded in land battles in the Munda sector, the broadcast said.

It also asserted American naval units attacking at Vella Levella lost several transports in attacks by Japanese surface warships and aircraft.

The Japanese claims of American losses were wholly without substantation.

The Tokyo radio, declaring that Emperor Hirohito is deeply concerned over Japanese war production, appealed to the Japanese people to "set the mind of the emperor at ease" by exerting new efforts to boost production, the office of war information reported.

The appeals, the OWI said, were made in broadcasts describing a series of audiences to which the emperor summoned leaders of

FASCIST SLAIN?

Italian Dispatches Admit Death of Party Secretary.

LONDON — (INS) — An Italian news dispatch was quoted today by Reuter's as saying Ettore Muti, former secretary-general of the Fascist party, was shot by Italian police "while attempting to escape."

(In New York, U. S. government monitors reported the Stefani news agency asserted Muti was slain at Fregene near Rome after his henchmen had fired on police. When Stefani announced Muti's death yesterday, no mention was made of the manner in which he had died.

(Simultaneously, the Muti Hungarian news agency quoted a report in Popolo Di Roma that Count Allessandro Frontini, former member of the Fascist party directorate, had committed suicide following a nervous breakdown."

Hout, County Commissioner, Succumbs Today at Hospital

Ray Hout, 57, Richland county commissioner and well-known farmer of Mifflin township, died at 11:30 today at General hospital.

Death followed an operation for hernia last Thursday from which he apparently made a successful rally. Mr. Hout telephoned from his hospital bed to friends at the courthouse Friday and seemed to have successfully rallied from the operation at that time.

Saturday he took a turn for the worse and failed to respond to a blood transfusion given yesterday. He had been in an oxygen tent for the past few days after his condition had become more complicated.

Mr. Hout was serving his second term as county commissioner having been re-elected to the office in 1940. Prior to that he held the office of clerk of Mifflin township from 1921 to 1930.

Mr. Hout's two colleagues on the board of commissioners, Guy Stewart, chairman, and C. I. Shoup, paid tribute to their fellow commissioner today.

Service Letters Tell of Many War Problems

If you're in the service—soldier, sailor, marine or coast guardsman—and you have a problem regarding insurance, allowances and allotments, or desire information regarding any other branch of the service, write to Beatrice Fairfax, care of this paper.

Beatrice Fairfax lives in Washington, and will be glad to get in touch with War and Navy departments, through press liaison officers of these branches of the service, to give your problems correct answers. She will also answer questions in her column for those who do not ask for personal reply.

Rations for Servicemen.

Dear Miss Fairfax: When a service-man is home on furlough, what provision does he make to get rationed foods? My son is coming home very shortly on a four-day visit, and I want to be prepared. How do I go about getting these extra points?

W. L. K. (Soldier's Mother)

All American service-men, as well as Allied soldiers and sailors, on leave in the U. S. for 72 hours or longer, may attain ration certificates. A "furlough ration unit" covers rationed food eaten at nine meals. This consists of 8 points for processed food, 8 points for meat and fats, and one quarter pound of sugar.

A soldier on leave for four days would receive two units, enough for eighteen meals. These allowances for rationed foods will only be issued if the service-man is going to eat at home or in another place where ration stamps are needed.

WACs May Marry.

Dear Miss Fairfax: How old do you have to be to enroll in the Woman's service of the army? And may a WAC marry while in service?

A. C. H.

An applicant wishing to enroll in the WACs must be 21 to 44 years of age, inclusive.

There are no restrictions against marrying while in the service No woman will be accepted as a member of the WAC, who has anyone financially dependent on her pay, and no applicant will be accepted if she has one or more children under fourteen years of age.

Period of Service.

Dear Miss Fairfax: What is the time an inducted person must serve in the army after the close of the war?

(Mrs.) H H.

Men are inducted for the period of the war and six months thereafter. The official termination of a war may be deferred for several years after an armistice. World war between the U. S. and Germany did not terminate officially until 1921 but most of the army was demobilized before then. There's no use trying to figure how long it's going to be before your man comes home.

Overseas Packages.

Dear Miss Fairfax: Is it permissible to send small packages or pictures to men in overseas service?

A. N.

The ruling on package mail has been changed since I published a letter on this subject recently. The postoffice will acept an eight ounce package at three cents an ounce (first class mail) without the soldier's letter of request.

If you want to send a larger package, it may not exceed five pounds and may not be more than 15 inches in length and 36 inches in length and girth combined. This must be accompanied by a letter of request, written by the service man, but does not have to be countersigned by his commanding officer.

Sept 15, to Oct. 15 has been designed as Christmas mail month for soldiers overseas, and Christmas packages within the prescribed limitations will be accepted without request letters. These packages should bear the indorsement "Christmas Gift Parcel"

It is now possible to transmit by V-mail photographs of children under one year of age, of soldiers serving overseas. The picture may include the mother or the person holding the child The photograph must be transposed to the regulation V-mail form and may not cover more than one-third of the correspondence space, and must appear on the upper left portion.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers,
By ADELE GARRISON

"I will let you know as soon as I drag the information from the boy," Milner said as he bowed himself out, and his tone indicated that he would resort to medieval tortures if necessary.

"Please telephone your findings to me," Katherine said in a tone that meant: "Do not dare to come back here" Then she added with a firm look at me. "I am putting Mrs. Graham to bed for a couple of hours. She has an appointment with a publisher this afternoon, and she does not wish to miss it."

"Of course I will telephone," Milner said suavely. "I would not think of asking Mrs. Graham to see me again today."

He went away upon the word, and as soon as the door closed behind him, and Katherine had put up the night chain, I swung my feet to the floor and got up from the bed

"What do you make of it? "I asked excitedly.

"The same conclusion that I think you have reached yourself," she said. "He put on a very good act, as did the boy. Edwards was simply playing himself, a stolid house detective, not too generously endowed with gray matter."

"That's what I think," I said "but I'm glad you agree with me. It will help to convince Father and Dicky"

"I don't think they'll need much convincing," she said dryly. "I'll call them in and let them in on it."

She was at the bedroom door as she finished, and in another few seconds my father and my husband were back in the sitting room with us.

Wants To Change.

"I would like to get into street clothes again before I talk," I said I won't be long."

"We'll wait," my father said.

Katharine followed me into the bedroom and played the role of an expert personal maid to such good effect that it was less than five minutes when I came back into the sitting room.

"You're a real trouper," Dicky said, and I swept him a bow.

"Now let's hear what Milner wanted," my father said, and when I had finished telling him of the manager's call, he pressed the tips of his fingers tightly together, then releasing them, spread his hands apart with a quick familiar gesture.

Asks Dicky's Opinion.

"What do you think, Richard?" he asked.

"That he put on a good act," Dicky replied.

"Exactly," my father said. Then he turned to Katharine and me.

"I gather from the way you told the story, Margaret, that you agree with us."

"Absolutely," I told him. "He simply wanted to know whether or not I really was here and had been here all the forenoon, and he had to build up an elaborate reason for wishing to see me."

"Thus is your opinion, also, Katharine?"

"Yes, it is," she replied

"One thing more," my father said, "but the most important of all Do you think the little play you put on convinced him?"

"I am sure it did," Katharine answered promptly. "I watched him very closely while he was in here and he did not give the slightest sign of suspecting that everything was not what it seemed. Madge put on a splendid imitation of a weak, fragile, harassed woman. I m sure she got away with it.

"Speak for yourself, wench!" Dicky adjured me. "Do you think you fooled him?"

"I hope so," I began, then more firmly: "I'm sure he believed I'd been here all the morning"

"Then that's all I need to set my mind at rest on the subject of Milner," my father said "We probably shan't be bothered with him for the next day or two. But now I want to hear everything that happened at the Van Sittart."

Plain Jane Into Radiant Young Woman In Love

By MADAME QUI VIVE

Plain Jane fell in love, and the man she loved loved her. She wondered how such a miracle had happened, because she was a quiet little mouse who sat in the corner while the Lovelies turned on the charm.

She looked in the mirror and saw that her countenance carried a radiance that was never there before. Eureka! If happiness could improve her appearance perhaps there were other powers that could be called upon. She'd never thought much about that before, taking it for granted that as she had been plain, she would stay plain for life. But here was an incentive. She had somebody for whom to pretty up. She would no longer be a negative personality. She'd shine too.

She noticed that her eyes had become luminous. They had been just so-so, mainly because she had never known how to turn on the high lights. She bought a box of mascara, touched up colorless eyelashes and was pretty pleased with herself. She had scorned makeup, except for powder and a faint lipstick. With lashes coming to life, she had her eyebrows beautifully arched, touched up a bit with the crayon.

Before she had been vapid in appearance, now she was acquiring the vividness that comes from cleverly applied artifice.

After the eyebrow remodeling she had an idea. She would have the whole beauty works, wouldn't wait until the day before her wedding to be prettied.

She had a facial after which the operator tried out different shades of rouge, powder and lipstick until she found a combination that gave freshness to Plain Jane's complexion. That was fun. Jane's eyes were as big as saucers when a touch of rouge was swept over the lids.

"Of course, if you want to look extra smart in the evening, you'll use eye shadow," said the operator, "but you have to be slick and tricky to get them on to advantage. Next time you have a facial I'll demonstrate."

She had a hand and arm massage, followed by a manicure. The nail polish she bought was just a tone darker than the new lipstick she was carrying home.

Now for the transition from dowdiness to chic.

Jane's figure was a bit dumplingish, so she consulted a corsetiere, had a foundation garment made to order. The corsetiere sent her to a dress shop where the boss gave her individual attention. Jane found that this clever woman was a color artist. She picked out frocks of rich shades and dainty fabrics Jane had always been a beige-and-brown girl, never wore gay colors in her life. There she was, ugly duckling into swan.

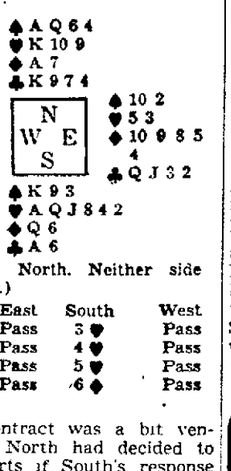
The name Munda came from an ancient town in the southern part of Spain, which got its place in history as a battleground.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay
"The Authority on Authorities"

TWO SQUEEZES IN A HAND

Squeeze plays are rare enough at best, but to find two entirely different kinds of squeezes being made in the same deal is really something. Difference in opening lead can cause variation in the choice of play, and then there are times when one prayer merely figures out a hand in one manner while another does it in some other way.



(Dealer: North. Neither side vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♥	Pass
4 ♣	Pass	4 ♥	Pass
4 NT	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 NT	Pass	6 ♦	Pass

That contract was a bit venturesome. North had decided to bid 6-Hearts if South's response to the Blackwood 5-No Trumps had been 6-Clubs, showing no kings at all. He bid the grand slam knowing the opponents held one king, though not the trump king. The same 7-Hearts got bid at another table of the same duplicate, but there is no record of their bidding. Both of these declarers, however, made their contracts by means of squeezes.

In one case the opening lead was the heart 7. The declarer counted up his tricks, seeing 12 sure and a 13th in sight if the spades would break evenly. So he took two trump rounds ran three spades to find they wouldn't break, and then built his squeeze. He took the club A and K and then ran four more hearts, holding the diamond Q-6 also as he laid down the last, with the diamond A-7 and spade 6 in dummy. West held his spade J to guard against dummy's 6, so had to throw a diamond from the K-J. The spade 6 was then tossed from dummy, whereupon the diamond A and Q got the last two tricks.

At the other table, West led the spade 5. South decided that was either a singleton or fourth-best, and that the spades wouldn't break. So he worked on his squeeze from the start. Winning the opener with the spade K, he scored two hearts, the diamond A and the club A and K, then his remaining four hearts. As the last was led, he also held the spade 9-3 and diamond Q, and dummy the spade A-Q-6 and club 9. West had to discard from the diamond K and his spade J-8-7. If a spade, the dummy's would all be good, and the club would be discarded. But West chose the diamond K, hoping his partner had the Q, but that too, was disastrous, giving South the needed additional trick with the diamond Q.

Upside Down Meat Pie Is Tasty Dish

By BETSY NEWMAN

Recently I gave you a meat pie recipe—a pot pie, to be exact. We usually associate upside down dishes with desserts, but I have run across an excellent recipe for Upside Down Meat Pie. It's well worth trying.

Today's Menu.

Upside Down Meat Pie
Scalloped Tomatoes
Cucumber, Green Pepper and French Endive Salad with French Dressing
Sponge Pudding Tea

Upside Down Meat Pie

1 lb. ground meat
1 cup sliced onion
2 tablespoons fat
¼ teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon salt
1 can tomato soup
1 cup milk

Add meat to onion which has been browned in fat; cook until brown and crumbly, but not hard. Add seasonings and tomato soup, and simmer until thick. Add milk to biscuit mix and stir well. Pour over hot meat and bake in hot oven (450 degrees F.) for 20 minutes. You can make your own biscuit mixture if you prefer. Turn out onto chop plate and cut in wedges.

More than a century and a half ago Bryansk, near Orel, began to develop as a munitions center.

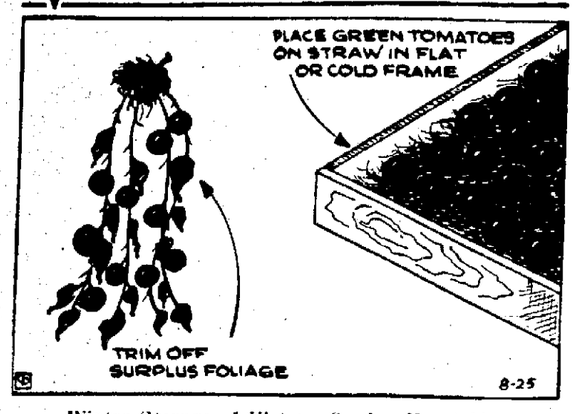
Today's VICTORY GARDEN-GRAPH



Winter Storage of Victory Garden Vegetables.

By DEAN HALLIDAY
Released by Central Press Ass'n.

Many of the vegetables growing in the Victory garden can be kept producing long after the first frost, if protected. Frequently, there are two or three weeks of good growing weather following the first frost. Therefore, the wise gardener will have available a supply of hay or straw to throw over lettuce and other greens.

As illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, tomatoes and peppers can be saved from frost by pulling up the vines and hanging them, top down, in the garage or cellar. The fruits will continue to ripen.

Some gardeners prefer to remove the green tomatoes and lay them on a layer of straw in the cold frame or flats, as illustrated. Cover the frame with glass but allow ample ventilation.

Parsnips, salsify and horse radish can be left in the soil all winter. Kale is not harmed by light frosts and can be dug out from under the early snows if the ground has not frozen too hard. Broccoli, Brussels sprouts and cabbage will stand fairly stiff freezing.

ONE MORE REASON

OAKLAND, Cal. (U.P.) — Father Hubbard, the Glacier priest, who knows Alaska and the Aleutians like a book, says there is another reason, apparently being entirely overlooked, why the Japanese on Kiska island should be thrown into the sea immediately. He says if they remain there much longer they will have acquired the right to apply for citizenship in the United States.

IN THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

WASHINGTON—Congress could perform a useful task on its return next month by expressing itself on certain essentials of foreign policy.

No policy will last long in a democracy unless senators and representatives can face their constituents without having to apologize for it. There must be some fundamental positions that could be taken with substantial unified national support. Let's find out what they are.

Clapper

Congress could clear the air by stating its attitude on several questions. Should Axis aggressors be disarmed and kept disarmed? Should Hitler, Mussolini and other war criminals be shot? Is close collaboration with Britain needed in the future in the best interests of American defense? Is the collaboration of Russia needed to make a stable peace more likely? Should America be prepared to join other nations in use of force to prevent aggression?

Why should the Gallup poll do all the registering of American opinion on such questions? Why should not the elected representatives of the people, who have been for several weeks among their constituents, register their judgments on such questions?

Congress is regarded abroad by many as a kind of native ogre that frustrates the foreign policies of American presidents. Wilson's unhappy experience is always in foreign thoughts. It is also a kind of bogey that makes Mr. Roosevelt falter into a vacuum at times when an aggressive American policy is needed.

To be sure, there is a school that would keep the doors locked against congress. Such persons would tell congress nothing, and would ask nothing of congress, considering it too benighted to bother with. They would try to enmesh the United States so deeply into international affairs that congress could not extricate the country if it wished. That was Wilson's idea and it didn't work.

No policy that cannot win the support of a majority of this congress is likely to survive very long. Any foreign policy that senators and representatives can't safely take with them out into a political campaign won't survive the first frost.

When men like the four senators—Ball, Burton, Hatch and Hill—and men like Rep. Fulbright of Arkansas, crusade for international collaboration, we ought to encourage them in bringing such issues to a decision in congress. The indifference, if not hostility, in the administration to the efforts of these men is difficult to understand. Presumably we are trying to arrive at a democratic foreign policy, one supported by the American people and their representatives in congress, one that will stand up through and after election.

We can't hope for complete agreement and it certainly would be a waste of time to water down everything into empty words. If a substantial majority of congress does not consider it to our national interest to keep the enemy disarmed, to use force if necessary to prevent future aggression, and if it is not considered in our interest to have close collaboration with Britain after the war, and with Russia if Stalin will co-operate for his part, then we ought to know now which policies of that kind congress is not prepared to support.

FRENCH FLEET DUE TO SWING INTO ACTION

Units Expected To Relieve U. S., British of Duty In Mediterranean.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—The liberated French fleet soon may be assigned the major naval role in the Mediterranean to relieve American and British navy units for duty in other, increasingly active war theaters, informed sources indicated today.

One of the chief reasons for this move, it was understood is that the French fleet is now strong enough to handle the task. It would also be in keeping with the desire of Allied leaders to give the French greater opportunity to help free France.

This development came as the Roosevelt-Churchill promise of an imminent new blow against the Axis touched off a wave of conjecture here over the likely theaters of action. Most opinion was divided between Mediterranean and Pacific areas.

The American fleet units in the Mediterranean, which played a significant part in the conquest of Sicily, probably would be transferred to the Pacific where the full weight of the U. S. navy will be thrown against the Japanese.

As for British warships, it was expected they would move into the waters of the Indian ocean to aid in the forthcoming Burma campaign. This campaign, it was believed, figured prominently in the Roosevelt - Churchill discussions concerning aid to China.

There is already definite evidence of increased naval participation in the Mediterranean. The French light cruisers Fantasque and Le Terrible, which less than six months ago were pratically immobilized, are now co-operating closely with Allied naval forces there.

These were among the French warships which arrived in this country for repair and refitting after a secret dash from Africa last February.

According to Vice Admiral Raymond A. Fenard of the French naval mission to this country, the French fleet available to co-operate with the Allies includes three battleships, three heavy cruisers, six light cruisers, an aircraft carrier, four large and five small destroyers, 14 submarines, and other lesser craft.

MILEAGE CUT TO BE LESS THAN FOURTH

OPA Official Says Drivers Now Must Prove Need For Extra Ration.

(By Associated Press)

CLEVELAND — The 25 per cent cut in value of gasoline coupons will not bring motorists' driving down that much, John B. Tegarty, an office of price administration mileage officer, declared today.

"If ration boards function properly, the cut in mileage should be noticeable, but will not be nearly 25 per cent," Tegarty told an interviewer. "A great reduction will be brought, however, by the fact that exact need of supplemental rations must now be proved to the local board's satisfaction rather than estimated as was previously done."

When this need is proved, More coupons will be granted to make up for the reduced value of the rations, Tegarty said, except for certain categories of drivers such as salesmen.

"B" and "C" book holders benefited technically by the Aug. 16 ration cut, Tegarty said, for while their coupon values were reduced from four to three gallons their theoretical pleasure mileage was increased 30 miles.

"Personal incidental driving for card holders was increased from 90 miles to 120 miles per month. Under the old arrangement an "A" book permitted 240 miles monthly, "B" broken down as 150 miles for occupational driving and 90 miles for pleasure," Tegarty explained.

"The new plan allows only 180 miles to the 'A' book holder, but 120 miles of the grant is for pleasure and only 60 can prove need for gasoline mileage over 60 miles he gets supplemental rations. This setup reduces the disparity between the 'A' book holder and the 'B' and 'C' book holder and when it comes to pleasure driving.

Tegarty said all supplemental ration books would be tailored henceforth as individuals had trouble budgeting coupons in the past when they were given a full book for extensive periods. Under the new system, all books will be renewed every three months.

FAIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

NEW YORK—Not for anything would I pry into the private business of our distinguished international statesman and confessed success, Joseph Davies, who, in his somewhat biographical film, calmly admitted that he was a one-gallus boy who had made it the hard way, so if that plane ride of his from here to Moscow and back was just a personal jaunt to visit old friends or pick up something that he forgot, why just skip it. We of the subject classes have learned that it is not for us to ask questions about the private travels of our betters who have given, or anyway promised us, the more abundant life in a brave new world. But if it was a business flight, and the business concerned all of us, as many Americans were given to believe at the time, a brief report, or at least an inkling, would be appreciated, I am sure, by one and all. For, after all, that was our ship that whipped Davies away and at our expense, met out of rising taxes, paid, as President Roosevelt once said, through the sweat of all of us who toil; and the gas that he used came off the top of our national supply, before any of us civilians, in the seaboard states could buy a drop and at a time when the shortage was worst and anyone who drove halfway to the village to see Davies' patriotic movie and coasted the other half of the way, was a traitor doing Hitler's work.

Pegler

"It is interesting to us to realize," President Roosevelt said in his latest speech, counseling us all to be patient under rationing, "that every Flying Fortress that bombed harbor installations from its base in North Africa, required 1110 gallons of gasoline for each single mission, and that this is equal to about 375 A ration tickets, enough to drive your car five times across this continent."

This was a very impressive way of putting the matter up to us, but not nearly as impressive as an account would have been of the amount of gasoline consumed by Davies on his mysterious errand. We would have been impressed not only by the quantity of the fuel, but even more so by the mileage which our citizens denied themselves in order that Davies could go and return.

The flight from North Africa to Naples and back is a short hop, apparently not more than 700 miles, and Davies would seem to have flown about 30 times as far. Thus we may deduce that Davies used up 33,300 gallons of gasoline, most of it sent from here to Britain and Russia, and to the Alaskan outposts, each gallon at some risk if not loss of human life in the navy and merchant marine, and each gallon at the cost of more or less serious deprivation to his fellow citizens.

If the mission was vital to the winning of the war, no patriot could object, but we already had an excellent ambassador in Moscow and the radio and mails were available and, moreover, if it was absolutely necessary to send the note by hand, there were routine services plying the skies and the seas which could not have been seriously overloaded by the addition of one personal communication from the president to the dictator.

Mr. Willkie's trip of course is comparable but not identical, for his mission seems to have been openly political, and perhaps it will be agreed that rival candidates for the presidency all should have access to the remote affairs in which the nation is involved and their chance to advertise their personalities and views to American fighting men in the far places.

But as to Davies' flight we know only that he went and came back, bearing an envelope which could have contained nothing more than a birthday greeting or a good one that Steve Early heard in the locker-room and the boss wished to pass along to Stalin. That much we know plus this, that Davies' film, which has since laid an egg, was a propaganda project of the administration in need of advertising in pure reading matter.

PROBE PLUNGE OF MRS. LONG

Detectives Quiz Husband, Say Evidence Points To Suicide Leap.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — The circumstances surrounding the death plunge of Mrs. Eli Long, 32-year-old wife of a widely-known horseman, were under scrutiny of police detectives and Dr. E. E. Smith, coroner, today.

Dr. Smith withheld an official verdict pending an interview with the woman's husband. Mrs. Long either jumped or fell from the sixth floor of the Neil House striking the pavement below. She died 15 minutes later without regaining consciousness.

"All evidence we have been able to find seems to point toward suicide," said Detective Chief Leo Phillips. He added that Mrs. Long's husband said her death occurred shortly after he had warned her not to use sleeping tablets.

"I always objected to her using them because they made her depressed the following day," Phillips quoted Long as saying.

Long told Phillips that yesterday they had talked again about sleeping tablets and he had cautioned his wife, saying, "if you take any more of those sleeping tablets, I'm going to leave," to which she replied, "well, I'll leave, too."

She then ran and jumped through the window screen, Long said. Mr. and Mrs. Long came to the Neil House Monday from a Cleveland horse show. They were preparing for the fall meeting at Beulah park. Long is the owner of the White Star farms, near Delaware.

TWO INJURED

Two Others Escape In Three Accidents Near City.

Two persons were injured yesterday and two others escaped injury in three accidents in the Mansfield area, state patrolmen reported today.

Paul Grogg, Galion, suffered face and arm lacerations when the truck he was driving turned over on U. S. Route 30, west of Mansfield. Grogg told officers the truck failed to negotiate a turn off of State Route 61 onto the main highway. He was treated at Galion hospital and was released.

The other person injured was Mrs. Helen Alley, Galion, who suffered cuts and bruises when the car in which she was riding, driven by her son, Harvey Alley, collided with a state highway department truck on State Route 95, north of the city. Driver of the truck, Martin J. Welker, 151 Ford street, and Alley escaped injury.

Arthur L. Loos, Coshocton, who said he fell asleep while driving, espaced injury when the truck he was driving left the road and landed in a ditch on State Route 13, near Shenandoah.

Up and Down THE STREET

Chickens and gardens just don't mix in Richland county, especially when they don't belong to the same person. That's what Sheriff Frank Robinson has discovered. Lately his office has been flooded with calls from irate citizens asking the sheriff's help in getting the neighbor's chickens out of their garden. Today a woman called to complain about a neighbor's calf gamboling merrily over her vegetables. The whole problem has the sheriff stumped. All he can do is warn the owners to keep their chickens penned and calves and dogs tied- that is unless he wants to fill the jail with animals he's "arrested."

Mansfield and Richland county Victory gardeners received their official invitation today to exhibit the fruits of their summer's work at the harvest show Sept. 11 and 12 at the Mansfield Armory. Attractive eight-page booklets listing entry classifications, prizes, and rules and regulations for the show, along with entry blanks were issued by the committee in charge of the show. Copies of the booklets are available free of charge at garden club headquarters and the civilian defense office at the city building. Entries must be submitted to the show committee by Sept. 9 and prizes will be paid in war stamps.

WILL PLAN '44 FARM PROGRAM

Ohio Agriculture Groups To Study Problems at Meeting In Columbus Next Month.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS — Representatives of Ohio farm groups will meet here Sept. 10-11 to formulate a state farm production program for 1944, Elmer F. Kruse, state farm war board chairman, announced today.

Kruse said the meeting would investigate all phases of Ohio's farm program and problems. Although no specific food goals have been set for Ohio in 1944, it is expected that farmers again will be asked to increase acreage.

One reason for the anticipated request for increased acreage was the poor showing of this year's crops because of inclement planting weather, complicated by manpower and machinery shortages.

Ohio farmers last spring in some instances had difficulty obtaining needed planting machinery, although the war production board released additional metal for farm machinery manufacture in time to help during the harvest season.

More recently the WPB released even greater quantities of steel to farm machinery manufacturers and an ample supply of new planting and harvesting equipment is expected to be available to Ohio farmers next spring.

Kruse said representatives of the agricultural extension service, AAA, farm bureau, grange, farm security administration, state farm war board, soil conservation and other interested farm groups would attend the September meeting.

ON BROADWAY-- By Dorothy Kilgallen

Manhattan Nights.

Pity the poor patrons of the town's nightclubs! To amuse, excite and entertain them they have only the floor shows. Nothing more. And if they are sophisticated regulars, they have long ago learned what to expect of the midnight divertissements—a comedian, a dance team, a girl who bounces off a fast rhythm song and then slows down to tell how unlucky in love she's been, a chorus of smiling dancers, a parade of beautiful frozen-faced girls.

Kilgallen

There are other kinds of performances in cafes, but audiences rarely see them. The participants hardly ever get a great big hand and seldom come back to take a bow. But the memory of them lasts longer than memories of the contortionist's triple somersault, the vocalist's two octave range, or the comedian's miraculous memory for other comedian's jokes.

Take the story they remember about graying, garrulous Bill Charlton, the bartender in a Broadway restaurant.

Bill is a veteran of the sport set's outer fringe. Years ago, he chauffeured a horse-drawn hack in and around the Broadway beat, and it was well known that the great John L. Sullivan, who was affectionately acquainted with Bill, was grandly stubborn about finding his favorite cabbie when he wanted to tour the town.

When Bill gave up hacking, he became a bartender in the "saloon" (a respectable term in that plush era) that bore the name of Gentleman Jim Corbett.

A few years ago, Bill went to work at Dempsey's on Eighth avenue. Behind the bar which was Charlton's domain, there loomed a rather fierce mural featuring lifesized images of prize-fight champions in fighting gear, their gloved fists menacingly poised.

To this bar one day came a character obviously not of the prosperous, good-natured clientele for which the management had been aiming. He wore no coat, and he kept his battered cap on his head. He was husky, homely, and inebriated. "Give me a gin with a beer chaser," he demanded.

"Don't you think you've had enough?" asked Bill quietly. "Don't you think you'd better go home?"

The rough-looking customer glowered. For a moment he put his hands on the bar as though he intended to jump over it and massacre the bartender.

But as his eyes fought through their alcoholic haze to what was behind Bill, the character suddenly swallowed hard, stepped back and looked at Charlton the way you look at a bully who is taking a mean advantage. He pointed a wavering finger at the mural.

"I'd teach you a lesson," he blubbered, "if you didn't have all those big guys behind you!"

Then there is the story that was recalled a few nights ago by the minor incident that took place when the proprietor of a Greenwich Village restaurant his mother founded 50 years ago, went hunting in the attic of the old building in search of his mother's guest book, which contains some famous signatures. He didn't find the guest book, but he stumbled across an old valise, and awakened a fable that once held a nation spellbound.

Many years ago a young English nobleman, Sir Thomas Blake, dined nightly at the restaurant, always alone. His manner was quiet and kindly, and habitues of the restaurant looked upon the young man as somewhat eccentric, chiefly because he always came in carrying a battered brown suitcase which he never allowed to leave his sight.

This was the era in which a series of bold bank robberies was baffling the police, and for many months a nation-wide hunt for the criminal brought nothing but failure. Then, one day, the search ended and Sir Thomas Blake's picture was emblazoned across every front page in America.

The newspaper revealed that the clever criminal had eluded the police for so long because of the disguise he wore on his "jobs." After each robbery he removed the disguise, put it away in a brown valise he always carried, and switched into the change of attire that the bag contained.

Those prosecuting the case desired the valise as additional evidence, but the police could never find a trace of it. Because when Sir Thomas Blake became aware that the hunters were on his track, he paid a final call on the little Village restaurant and asked "Ma," the proprietor, to put his suitcase away for him "in a safe place" until he came for it again.

And so it remained in the old attic, forgotten, until the other night, when "Ma's" son came dashing down the stairs carrying the brown bag that had belonged to the most daring bank robber of his time—Sir Thomas Blake, better known as Gerald Chapman.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

Funny how this space turns to football day after day, and summer still here. Must be dog days.

But today comes the first official word on football from the Mansfield high Tygers.

The equipment room at the high school will be open all day Monday for issuing of practice togs to the Tyger candidates, Coach Paul Snyder announces.

Although the rules keep the Tygers from starting regular practice before Sept. 1, Snyder is anxious to get all the preliminary work out of the way so he'll be able to start practice at full speed ahead. Also he'd like to count noses and see what material he has back.

Meanwhile if Snyder keeps his fingers crossed tightly enough, he may have Tackle Jack Guy and Fullback Jerry Zeller around for part or all of the season, although both are already sworn in service.

It all depends upon when they are called to duty.

As things shape up now, Guy and Zeller would be just about all the Tygers would need to make them click.

Anxious to get in the service of his choice, Zeller, who won't be 18 and draft eligible until October, enlisted recently in the coast guard.

Now he's waiting the call to duty, and if he has to wait as long as some others have waited in the past, he may be here for the entire football season. Then again he may be called tomorrow. You never can tell.

Meanwhile Zeller, an "A" student, is planning to return to school until the call comes.

Jack Guy was sworn into the Marines at Cleveland Monday, after having passed his examinations five weeks ago.

Now he is home awaiting his call which may come tomorrow or next week or two months from now. He also is prepared to return to school until the call comes.

But he hasn't made up his mind yet about going out for football, feeling what's the use of practicing if you're not going to play. Well, that's the chance he takes.

He may play the entire season, or just a few games, or maybe not at all. But it wouldn't hurt to be in tip top condition for the Marines. Get busy with the sales talk, Mr. Snyder.

Yankees Go After Record

Seek 12th Straight Winning Series Today.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

THE heat is on the New York Yankees today.

Before you take another look at the baseball standings, give us time to explain it's the pressure of pride which is bearing heavily on the American League champions.

They need to take both ends of a doubleheader at Detroit today to win the seven-game series and extend their record-performance to victory in 12 consetive series.

This is a feat never accomplished even by the famous Yankees of other years and is a dearly sought goal by the 1943 club.

The Yankees got themselves into a hole by losing a doubleheader to the Tigers Sunday. They won a single game Monday and yesterday took the first half of a double bill 2-1. But the Tigers came back to win the second game 3-1.

The Yankees have the only record-breaking streak now in existence in the American league. The Philadelphia Athletics had one of a different kind going strong until last night, but, after losing the first part of a doubleheader to the Chicago White Sox 6-5 for their 20th straight setback, the A's finally submitted to the law of averages and won the second game 8-1.

The Boston Red Sox of 1906 and the Athletics of 1916 were the only other American league clubs to drop 20 straight.

Washington strengthened its grasp on second place by beating the St. Louis Browns 10-4 as Clayton Hoafner pitched four-hit ball.

The Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians divided, with Cleveland capturing the first game 5-2 on Allie Reynold's five-hit hurling and the Red Sox surging back to a 7-0 shutout with Heber (Dick) Newsome producing a two-hit masterpiece.

In the National league the St. Louis Cardinals edged the Boston Braves 1-0 when Stan Musial tripled a run home in the 10th inning.

Truett (Rip) Sewell was given his 19th success against five defeats as the Pittsburgh Pirates took a slugging session from the Brooklyn Dodgers 9-6 in a twilight game abbreviated to six innings by darkness.

A two-run ninth-inning homer by Buster Maynard gave the New York Giants an 8-7 decision over the Chicago Cubs in the first game of a doubleheader, but Ed Hanyzewski pitched a four-hitter to win the nightcap 6-1 for the Bruins and Cincinnati completed a sweep of its series at Philadelphia with a 4-2 triumph in a night game.

Tappans Give Westies Scare

League Leaders Edge To 4-3 Softball Win.

Tappans tossed a real scare into the camp of the Industrial softball league's undefeated first place Westinghouse club last evening, but couldn't quite make the grade. Score: Westinghouse 4, Tappans 3.

Nibbling away at Rodehaver's offerings, Tappans tallied a run in each of the third, fourth and fifth frames to tie the score at 3-all. But Westies came back with the clincher in the seventh.

Tappans got only five hits, Westies six.

Major items under discussion included the filling of football dates by Michigan and Purdue for those left vacant by the recent withdrawal of Michigan State from football. Michigan's open date is Sept. 25 and Purdue's is Nov. 13.

GAME SCHEDULED

OXFORD—(AP)—Miami university's football team will play the Naval Air Technical Training center at Memphis, Tenn., the night of Oct. 20.

Start Shooting At Vandalia

Grand American Trap Event on 44th Time.

By FRITZ HOWELL

VANDALIA —(AP)— Usually dreamy Vandalia stuffed cotton in its ears today as more than 400 marksmen, including about 50 from the armed services opened fire with 12-gauge shotguns in a three-day quest of gold and glory at the 44th grand American trapshoot.

A dozen national championships were up for decision as the field, slashed somewhat by gasoline rationing and travel restrictions, blazed away at 200 16-yard clays in the opening event.

The big barrage, on a "bring-your-own-shells" basis for the first time in history, was pared to three days from the usual eight, while the program was cut from 1900 targets to 500.

The 200-target North American championship for both men and women was today's headliner and the defending champions, Mrs. George Cameron of Houston, Tex., and big Bill Drennen, Utica, Ill., farmer, were on hand to defend their titles.

Others to be decided included the father-son, husband-wife, junior, sub-junior, state five-man team, veterans, class leaders and the champion of champions for both sexes. The latter race is for state title holders only.

Eva's Boy Trots Colt Mile In 2:09

GREENVILLE —(AP)— Walter Micheal's brown colt, Eva's Boy, may be the fastest two-year-old trotter in the country today.

His 2:09¼ in the second heat of the $13,120 horseman's stake for that class at the Drake county fair yesterday was announced as the best time for two-year-olds in 1943. The son of Volo Mite also led the field in the first half of the two-heat event, winning $6,360 for his Bucyrus owner.

Enac of the Goodtime stables of New York raced second in each heat. Third and fourth honors went to Director, owned by E. J. Merkle of Columbus, and Ruth Day, owned by Aaron Williams of Corning, N. J.

Wayne Smart, who drove Eva's Boy to victory in the program special, also held the reins on Mary M. when she finished first in all three heats of the fast class trot. The bay mare's best time was 2:03 in the second heat.

Candor, black gelding owned by W. R. Lawrence of Coleram, N. C., took the 2:24 trot in straight heats with a best time of 2:07½ in the second heat.

SHIRLEY ADVANCES

PHILADELPHIA— (AP) —Shirley Fry of Akron, O., defeated Nancy Slaughter of Pensacola, Fla., 6-1, 6-2, to enter the quarter finals of the national girls' lawn tennis championships yesterday. Miss Fry, western junior champion, was seeded second behind defending Champion Doris Hart of Miami, Fla., who beat Sylvia Knowles of Philadelphia, 6-0, 6-2.

Hall of Fame Players Meet

Baseball Immortals See War Bond Game.

NEW YORK —(AP)— The Hall of Fame "dream team" will arrive here today for the New York Journal American war bond baseball game at the Polo Grounds tomorrow.

Such baseball luminaries as Roger Bresnahan, Honus Wagner, Eddie Collins, Tris Speaker, George Sisler, Walter Johnson, Red Murray and Phil Troy will be present to see a war bond league team made up of New York Yankees and Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers compete against the crack Camp Cumberland club.

Former major leaguers Johnny Beazley and Enos Slaughter of the St. Louis Cardinals, Bill Hitchcock of the Detroit Tigers and Lew Riggs of the Dodgers will play with the Cumberland nine.

Leo Durocher, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, will probably handle the reins of the war bond league team because of Mel Ott's illness. The players, still unnamed, will be those receiving the most votes from fans who have purchased war bonds in their names, and those who have run up the highest total of performance points resulting in the purchase of bonds by their sponsors.

It was estimated that the game would pour more than $800,000,000 into Uncle Sam's war chest.

LEGION OFFICERS TO BE SEATED

SHELBY—Newly elected officers of O'Brien post of the American Legion will take office during the county installation ceremony to be held in Mansfield on Sept. 15.

L. J. Bookmyer will succeed Wayne Hodges as commander. Other officials include Ralph Johnson, vice commander; M. E. Berkley, adjutant; Henry Ottowski, finance officer; Dr. D. Bruce Young, chaplain, and R. J. Laser, sergeant-at-arms.

During the past year, the Legion's membership set a new record of 151 members.

Indians Split In Twin Bill

Lose Second Game, 7-0, To Heber Newsome.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Cleveland's Indians added another pitcher to their growing list of jinxes today. Kendall Chase, Johnny Niggeling and Atley Donald—to mention a few—only have to walk to the mound and the Tribesmen play dead.

The latest nemesis is the veteran Heber (Dick) Newsome, who blanked the Tribe with two singles last night as the Boston Red Sox triumphed 7 to 0 in the second game of a twi-night double header after the Indians copped the opener 5 to 2 on Allie Reynolds' five-hitter.

Newsome won his two starts against the Tribesmen last year and owns two decisions in as many engagements this campaign.

The best the Redskins could do against him last night was an infield single by Roy Cullenbine in the first inning and Hank Edwards' bounder through the box in the third which Newsome touched but couldn't field.

Mel Harder kept pace with Newsome during the first five inning, allowing no runs and only two blows. The Sox tallied three times in the sixth when Jim Tabor singled after Tony Lupien's walk and Bobby Doerr's double. Tabor moved to second on an infield out and scored when Newsome singled through the box.

Harder retired the first two batters in the seventh but Doerr singled and Tabor followed with a homer into the left field seats. Mel made his exit when Johnny Lazor singled. Pete Center pitched another single to shortstop "Skeeter" Newsome and Lazor crossed the plate on a double steal when Manager Lou Boudreau made a wild throw—his third error of the game. The Sox collected their final marker off Chubby Dean in the ninth when Lupien tripled and came home on Doerr's outfield fly.

In the twilight affair Reynolds went into the ninth with a two-hit shut-out but the Sox produced a pair of runs on singles by Lupien, Doerr and Tabor and Russ Peters' error.

Jeff Heath produced the Indians' first two markers by blasting his sixth homer in seven days and his 15th of the campaign with Peters on base in the fifth. The other three were fashioned in the eighth of a double by Boudreau, singles by Ray Mack, Reynolds and Peters and Emmett O'Neill's walk to Buddy Rosar with the sacks loaded.

The clubs transfer from Municipal Stadium to League Park for their third double header of the series today.

HAVE GOOD TRIP

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— The Cincinnati Reds headed for home at the conclusion of their most successful road trip this season.

The Reds ended their 21-game trip through the East, in which they won 15 and lost 6, by knocking off the Philadelphia Phillies last night, 4 to 2.

Lefty Clyde Shoun, who relieved Johnny Vander Meer in the fourth inning when the latter developed a blister on one of the fingers of his throwing hand, was credited with the victory—his fifth of the trip and 11th of the season.

The Phillies out-hit the Cincinnatians, 10 to 6, but they left 10 men standing on the runways. Dick Barrett, who was on the mound for the Phillies, out-pitched both Vander Meer and Shoun but a wild throw by the Phils' $25,000 rookie shortstop, Ray Hamrick, gave the Reds three unearned runs in the third inning.

The Reds performed brilliant afield. Vander Meer started the club's 146th doubleplay of the season in the fourth and Eddie Miller, Steve Mesner and Bert Haas came up with neat fielding exhibitions to keep the threatening Phils away from the home plate.

The Phillies got two runs in their half of the third on a walk, a single and a double by Coaker Triplett. In the ninth the Reds made an insurance tally on three singles, two of them infield blows.

STEWARD NAMED

COLUMBUS—(INS)—Thomas C. Bradley will return to Beulah park as presiding steward for the 19-day meeting of running races opening Saturday, Sept. 4, the Beulah park Jockey club announced today. Fred Burton will return as racing secretary with B. H. Held acting as his assistant.

BIVINS SCORES K. O.

WASHINGTON— (AP) —Jimmy Bivins, 177-pound heavyweight from Cleveland, knocked out Herbert Marshall, 170, of New York, last night in the sixth round of a fast boxing bout.

Dain Clay, Cincinnati outfielder, won 10 letters in high school athletic competition at Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio.

Ruth Calls 1927 Yanks Best

TED WILLIAMS BABE RUTH

By CHIP ROYAL
(AP Features Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—The greatest all-around baseball team within the last 30 years, if not for all time, was the Yankees of 1927.

At least that it what Babe Ruth told Cadet Ted Williams, the former Red Sox clouter, when the mutual admirers got together recently in the Yankee stadium locker rooms for a long gabfest.

The Big Bam spotted Ted coming into the stadium and as quick as he can say "Hi-Keed," he had his big left arm around the naval flier and was pumping him with questions about his new job.

But Ted wanted to talk baseball and that is one subject the Babe is always willing to go along on. So the two of them made their way down the long players' ramp into a corner of the visitors' dressing room where they wouldn't be disturbed.

"Still hitting 400?" the Sultan of Swat asked Terrific Ted as they sat down on a couple of players' trunks.

"Are you kidding?" quizzed Ted? "I'm so busy learning how to be a navy flier, I don't even know what the score is these days. By the way," he asked us, "what is my average?"

Told it was .365, the kid gave one of his big smiles and goshed: "I didn't know it was that much!"

Coming from Ted Williams, that was quite an admission for the ex-Red Soxer always was one to follow those batting averages. The conversation that followed showed he was still interested in hitting marks when he could get away from his navy cramming.

"Say, Babe," said Ted, "I've been wanting to talk to you a long time about hitters and old time players. I got into quite an argument down at Chapel Hill when I told them that I thought that modern day baseball players were a lot better than the old timers. Don't you?"

The Bam thought for a few seconds and slowly shook his head, replying:

"No, I can't agree with you. We haven't got the ball players now that we had back in the old days. Why even that team I played with in Baltimore (in 1914) had more players of major league caliber than a lot of your big league teams today.

* * *

"I think that is only natural though for not many good youngsters are playing in the minors these days. Of course you only have about a half dozen leagues going now and many of the best players are in the services, but you will have to go some to beat the boys of 25 to 35 years ago."

"What was the best baseball team you ever saw?" Ted asked the Babe.

"The 1927 Yankees," the Bambino replied without hesitation. "For all-round skill, speedy base running, excellent hitting, and the best pitching that any team ever had, you can't beat that 1927 bunch."

"That was the year you hit 60 homers, wasn't it?" asked Ted.

"Yes," replied Ruth, "but I don't think my homers made it such a great team as the hitting of Gehrig (Lou), Combs (Earle) and Meusel (Bob). Those boys were really hot that year."

(Gehrig hit .373 in 155 games which included 175 runs batted in, a league record; 47 home runs; scored 149 runs to leader Ruth's 158; and had 218 hits for 447 total bases. Combs hit .356 and Meusel, 337, their best all-time averages. Combs led the league in hits, 231, and scored 137 runs. The Babe hit .356 himself.)

"Of course we wouldn't have been able to do it if our pitchers hadn't been the tops. I think they were the best any Yankee team ever had. Wiley Moore led both leagues in earned runs and had 19 wins against seven losses. Waite Hoyt won 22 and seven, Urban Shocker 18 and six, Herb Pennock 19 and 8, Dutch Ruether about 13 and six, and George Pipgras, 10 and 3. Now how can you beat that kind of pitching?"

Williams agreed that it couldn't be done, but went on to point out that the Yanks hit .307 as a team, the highest percentage for any American league pennant winner.

"You see I do know my hitting averages," smiled Ted.

"Speaking of hitters," declared Ted, "who was the best hitter you ever saw?"

"Well, I'd be inclined to say Harry Heilmann because he was the fellow I always remember. I can't forget that he beat me out for the hitting championship on the last day of 1923.

"Seriously, though, I'd say that Ty Cobb was the best of them all. After all, he hit over .400 three times, and he was fast, a jump ahead of all of them."

Just then, the Babe got a call and left Ted. As Williams followed Ruth, he said:

"He can say what he wants, but I think he is the best hitter baseball ever had. I wish I could have seen Cobb, Speaker and some of the others, but my greatest regret is that I never saw the Babe play. That would have been something."

Texas Star Versatile

Excells In Everything He Seriously Attempts.

By HAROLD V. RATLIFF
(By Associated Press)

LUBBOCK, Tex. — Those who measure all-around greatness can start with one James Ross Callahan.

Out here at Texas Tech, the sturdy 185-pounder has built an athletic reputation by the simple process of excelling in everything he seriously attempts.

Callahan's performance for four years at Wink high school (during which the football team registered a string of 29 straight victories) gained him a host of followers.

Last season, Callahan's first as a regular with Tech, he earned an all-Border Conference berth with his triple-threat work. Always a parring runner and a fine spot kicker, he has added passing to his repertoire.

Last winter he went out for basketball and promptly won a place on Tech's traveling squad.

Came spring and he soon established himself as one of the school's top tennis players and he also was on Tech's all-star softball team.

Callahan's sports activities were somewhat restricted this year as Tech did not participate in intercollegiate track and field, but he also is an all-round star on the cinders. He won 58 medals in 10 different events in high school and earned five awards in one year of college competition.

He also is a crack swimmer, having served as a life guard, and is an adept diver.

As a bowler, he frequently tops 200. His best score is 240.

In both badminton and volley ball, he ranks with Tech's best.

Going even further, Callahan as a result of two years in Canada, is also some shakes of a skier, trapper and hunter (at the age of 13 he killed a 300-pound bear).

Boxing and golf are about the only sports James Ross, now a naval V15 reservist, hasn't mastered. Fighting he doesn't like and, although he can wham a golf ball into powder, "erratic" still is the best word for his links game. But just give him time.

Maple Lake Takes All-Star Series

Maple Lake softballers, champions of the Parks Association league, wound up their post-season series with the league all-stars last evening by taking their second straight victory 5-2.

The champs collected only three hits off young Jim Regula, while Bob Regula held the all-stars to five safe blows.

All-Stars Meet Pro Redskins

Grid Season Opens With Annual Classic.

By LEO FISHER

EVANSTON, Ill. — (INS) — Two great football teams will clash tonight at Dyche Stadium, Evanston, in the tenth annuall All-Star contest before 50,000 fans packing the stands to capacity.

It will be the Washington Redskins, professional champions, against a collection of college and ex-college players who are rated as among the best in the land.

Arthur (Dutch) Bergman, former Notre Dame player and for many years a top-ranking coach in collegiate circles, will be making his bow here as a pro grid boss, in command of the Redskins. It may or may not be a happy occasion for him.

Dutch wasn't the coach when the Redskins won the title by beating the Chicago Bears, the team that couldn't be beaten, but he inherited the team when Ray Flaherty went into service.

The collegians, for more than two weeks under strenuous training in Evanston, are ready for an all-out offensive. For the first time in several years the varsity boys are given a real chance to win.

The All-Stars this year include not only college men who have just graduated, but men who finished thetir collegiate careers a couple of seasons ago, and undergrads as well.

The starting line-up selected by head coach Harry Stuhldreher of the All-Stars contains 10 men from the mid-west and Pacific Coast points and one from the southwest.

The Big Ten will be represented by some of its greatest stars—Co-Captain Al Wistert of Michigan and Dick Wildung of Minnesota at the tackles; Pete Pihos of Indiana at end and Otto Graham of Northwestern and Pat Harder of Wisconsin in the backfield.

The rest of the starters for the college crowd are Bill Huber, Notre Dame, at end; Felix Bucek, Texas A. and M., and Garrard Ramsey, William and Mary, guards; Vick Lindskog, Stanford, center, and Dick Renfro, Washington State, and Bob Steuber, Missouri, backs.

Washington will have a typical pro league team on the field a heavy in the line, tricky in the backfield and ready to pass on the slightest provocation. With Sammy Baugh as the slinger, one can understand the latter.

But the All-Stars will be pretty good themselves in the aerial business with Otto Graham, Angelo Bertelli and Glenn Dobbs to call on.

The Redskins' starting lineup will have Bob Masterson and Bob McChesney at ends; Wilbur Wilkin and Clyde Shugart at tackles; Dick Farnum and Steve Slivinski at guards; George Smith at center; Sammy Baugh and Wilbur Moore, halfbacks; Bob Seymour, fullback, and Ray Hare, quarter.

A trophy will be presented between halves tonight to Bruce Smith of Minnesota as the most valuable player in the Western Conference last year and another to Don Hutton of the Green Bay Packers as the outstanding performer in the Professional league.

Norbert's Homers Win Two for Brews

(By Associated Press)

Ted Norbert, Milwaukee left fielder, got only two hits in a double header last night, but both were homers that helped the Brewers sweep the twin bill and boost their American Association lead to two full games.

His first game circuit smash came with the bases loaded in the last inning and beat Louisville 7-6. His second, with one on base in the seventh inning of the second encounter, was the margin of difference in the Brewers' 8-6 victory.

As a result of Milwaukee's twin triumph, second place Columbus lost ground despite its easy 8-1 conquest of Minneapolis.

At St. Paul, Toledo was held to a 7-4 victory when the Saints turned in five double plays, one short of tying the league record.

Indianapolis and Kansas City broke even. Kansas City won the opener 4-3, and Indianapolis then took the second 11-10.

FDR REQUESTS AXIS PEOPLES TO QUIT WAR

Reveals $13,900,000,000 Goes To Allies From United States Under Lend-Lease.

WASHINGTON —(INS)— President Roosevelt today made a strong appeal to the peoples of the Axis nations to accept unconditional surrender to the Allies promising them political freedom and economic security.

The president sounded this appeal as he reported that United States lend-lease aid has reached the staggering total of $13,973,339,000.

Lend-lease report to congress revealed today that 17 out of every 100 bombers produced in the United States during the past year went to the Allies. Also 25 out of every 100 fighter planes, 22 out of every 100 light tanks and 36 out of every 100 medium tanks went to other United Nations.

The chief executive promised the Axis peoples that if they will overthrow their despotic leaders, the United Nations will see that they are fed, that medicine is provided for their sick and that they will be given a helping hand in the restoration of their countries in the democratic way.

"Except for the responsible Fascist leaders, the people of the Axis need not fear unconditional surrender to the United Nations," the president declared in his eleventh lend-lease report to congress.

"The people of Axis-controlled areas may be assured that when they agree to unconditional surrender they will not be trading Axis despotism for ruin under the United Nations.

"The goal of the United Nations is to permit liberated peoples to create a free political life of their own choosing and to attain economic security.

"I have said that we shall bring food for the starving and medicine for the sick in the areas liberated by the United Nations. We have done so, under lend-lease, in North Africa. We are doing so in Sicily. We shall continue to do so in other areas, as they are liberated, to prevent economic breakdown and to aid the liberated peoples to produce and to help themselves.

"We shall provide these necessary civilian supplies in support of our military operations and as a matter of simple humanity."

The president reported that in July alone lend-lease aid to the other United Nations exceeded $1,000,000,000. He declared that "lend-lease supplies are hastening the day of final victory."

LABOR'S KEY

O'Neil Says Rubber Now Ready For Civilian Tires.

AKRON—(AP)—Scarcity of manpower, rather than rubber, is the main obstacle in producing automobile tires for civilian use, President William O'Neil of General Tire and Rubber stated today.

Asserting civilians "should be able to get tires by the middle of next year, if we are able to find the men and women to build them," O'Neil said the problem of raw material for tires had been largely solved by the synthetic program.

He lauded William Jeffers, rubber director, for a "wonderful job in getting our synthetics in production," and added "we shall have all, or more, than he promised."

ISSUES RULING FOR TRUCKERS

Truck operators holding tire rationing certificates, but who are unable to locate the proper tires within their county may apply to their nearest motor transport district office of the Office of Defense Transportation for assistance, the ODT announced today.

This information will be turned in to the office of the rubber director, who will arrange for the proper redistribution of tires so that all certificates can be honored as quickly as possible after issuance.

The ODT stated that this procedure was decided upon after some truck operators reported that they were unable to obtain the needed tires and as a result had to keep the vehicles out of operation.

GET MATERNITY AID SUPPLIES

Community Fund To Receive Applications From Wives of Men In Service.

Information pertaining to the Ohio Emergency Maternity and Infant Care program and application forms for such care may now be obtained at the Community Fund office, Walpark building.

The program became effective in Ohio on Aug. 12 and provides for care of wives and infants under one year of age of enlisted men.

Wives of servicemen requesting such care must obtain an application form for the infant care or maternity care. One side must be filled out by the person making the request and the other side must be filled out by the physician. The physician must indicate the type of service for which he is requesting authorization.

The mother must present evidence to the physician that she is the wife of an enlisted man, either by her allowance card, or by an envelope she has received through the mail from her husband giving his serial number.

The application forms must be returned by the physician to the Chief Division of Child Hygiene, Ohio Department of Health in Columbus.

DRILL NEW WELL

City Awards Contract, Starts Work Next Week.

Work on a new well at the Maxwell Springs pumping station will be started next week, City Engineer W. C. Statler said today after contract for the construction was awarded to the Ohio Drilling company of Columbus, lowest of three bidders. The Columbus firm's bid was $4,602.80.

The new well, expected to boost the city's water supply, will be 20 inches in diameter. If it proves successful, it will boost to eight the number of city wells at the Maxwell station.

Statler said a test well will be drilled first to determine whether there is an adequate water supply in the earth near the station before the permanent well is constructed.

BACK IT UP

Cleveland Officials Threaten to Call State Meeting on Threat.

CLEVELAND —(INS)— Cleveland civic officials warned today that if response to the city's demand for better state care of mental patients is not forthcoming, a state-wide conference of mayors and public welfare directors will be called.

E. L. Worthington, Cleveland city welfare head, said Mayor Frank Lausche has received letters of approval and encouragement from downstate officials in his demand for increased care of the mentally sick.

NAVY ARRESTS 6 MORE GUARDS DURING STRIKE

Union Leaders Seek To Spread Walkout To Two Additional Aeronautical Plants.

(By United Press)

JOHNSVILLE, Pa.—The navy today arrested six more Brewster Aeronautical Corporation guards as local union President Thomas De Lorenzo and other union officials left Philadelphia to ask Brewster's Long Island City and Newark, N. J., plants to join the walkout that has halted production at Johnsville since Monday.

The navy said the guards would be held with four others whose arrest precipitated the strike after they refused to work unless permitted to choose their working time on a seniority basis as permitted by the union. Recently sworn into the coast guard (temporary) reserve, the men retained their union status.

Despite a war labor board telegram characterizing the strike as "a threat to the nation at war," Lorenzo said he "had no alternative" but to recommend that the other Brewster workers join the strike as voted at a mass meeting of workers yesterday.

The navy said charges against the six guards arrested today would be announced later. They were taken to the Philadelphia navy yard receiving station.

Real issue of the strike of more than 5,000 workers involves the navy department, De Lorenzo said. "They want complete jurisdiction over all plant guards throughout the country and want to get them away from union control," he charged. "The navy is using the Brewster case as a guinea pig."

Backed by the board powers delegated last week by President Roosevelt, the WLB last night ordered the strikers, members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), to "return to work unconditionally at once."

NEEDS AGENT

Mayor Seeks Negotiator For Airport Land Purchase.

Mayor W. J. Locke said today he was still looking for an agent to represent the city in its negotiations for land needed for the proposed airport expansion program.

He said the Mansfield Real Estate board told him it was not interested in acting as a negotiator for the city, but any of its members would be willing to handle the job for compensation.

The mayor said he was afraid that kind on an arrangement would cost more than the $500 council set up for the work.

The city must acquire 1,000 acres of land near the present airport by the end of this year to meet the project requirements set up by the Civil Aeronautics authority in tentatively allocating $600,000 for the construction of the port.

BLOW TO LEWIS

WLB Reported To Have Voted Down Portal-to-Portal Pay.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — The War Labor board today was reported to have disapproved the $1.25 a day portal-to-portal pay provided in the proposed contract between the United Mine Workers of America and the Illinois Coal Operators association.

Reliable sources said that during the session yesterday afternoon, the board voted 8 to 4 to reject the portal-to-portal provision. A formal decision may be announced soon.

Illinois operators and the UMW presented the contract to the board for approval on Aug. 3. UMW president, John L. Lewis personally appeared before the board to urge acceptance of the contract.

Thirteen applications for the WAVES were made when the WAVES and SEABEES Recruiting Cruiser was in Mansfield last Sunday night and Monday.

The WAVES especially need enlisted girls interested in hospital work, aviation ground work, and communications, and officer candidates with experience in radio, navigation, or with any background in math or physics.

TRIAL SET

Cafe Operator To Face Jury on Charge Aug. 31.

Charged with selling beer to minors, Jack Theohor will come to jury trial Tuesday, Aug. 31, Juvenile Judge Stuart H. Chamer said today.

Charges were filed against Theohor following the arrest of five boys between the ages of 14 and 17 for intoxication. The boys told Judge Chamer they had been sold beer at the cafe operated by Theohor.

Hearing on the case was originally set for Aug. 11 but was continued until Aug. 18 since Theohor's attorney was unable to represent him at that time. Another continuation was granted when Theohor asked for jury trial.

Pearson Accepts Ford Challenge To Stage a Race

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Columnist Drew Pearson, 46, today accepted 80-year-old Henry Ford's challenge to a foot race, bicycle race or a jumping contest to determine who is the better man—physically.

Ford's challenge was issued after Pearson had said in a radio broadcast last Sunday that the government might have to take over the Ford Motor company because of Ford's failing health. Ford, once retired, assumed direction of the company after the recent death of his son, Edsel.

"The last time I saw Henry Ford I confess that he looked like a formidable adversary," Pearson said. "But I accept the challenge — with any vehicle, foot, bicycle or Model T Ford."

Apparently all that remains is for Ford to choose the "weapons," and for the two to agree on the time and place.

Government and diplomatic circles whose activities Pearson has reported for many years, hoped that the contest would take place here—and in public.

Both men are of about the same build, slight. Pearson probably a little heavier than Ford who weighs 150.

HITS BACK AT BUTTER CHARGE

Bucyrus Manufacturer Denies He Refused To Sell To Armed Forces.

BUCYRUS — C. W. Warnock, owner of the C. Warnock and company, butter manufacturers here, today denied the U. S. justice department's charge that he had refused to supply butter to the armed forces.

The charge was made when the justice department filed suit against the Bucyrus company in federal district court in Cleveland yesterday in an effort to compel the company to comply with a war food administration order requiring butter manufacturers to set aside a portion of their production for the armed forces.

"I will turn all my butter—go without myself—over to the government for the soldiers and fighting men but I am not in accord with a program which forces me to sell my product at a loss to a larger competitor who in turn ships in car load lots to government warehouses at a profit," Warnock declared.

He termed the phrase "armed forces" a subterfuge and said that the butter was going into warehouses for the lend-lease program.

"I offered my butter to an authorized government receiver in May when officials forced me to open my records to investigations but my offer was refused because 'the warehouses were full' of butter," he asserted.

Meanwhile today District Attorney Don C. Miller charged that the Bucyrus company failed to sell the government 30 per cent of its butter production requested during February, March and April and set aside only 30,000 pounds in May, June and July instead of the 133,000 pounds asked by the government.

The justice department asked the court to require the company to report on its production and set aside requested allotments for the war food administration.

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — Birkett L. Williams Cleveland, regional director of the Office of Price Administration, appeared today to have survived another of a series of ouster campaigns by Democratic patronage-seekers.

Sen. Frederick Van Nuys, D., Ind., said in Indianapolis he "will do nothing further" to replace Williams following a statement by Acting OPA Administrator Chester Bowles that he had no intention of replacing Williams.

MIXED PRICES HIDE TREND IN STOCK MARKET

Action Holds Narrow Range as Trade Proves Quiet After Brief Flurry.

NEW YORK — Price changes were mixed and narrow in early stock market trading today and, aside from a short flurry at the start, relatively quiet.

Hesitantly higher were Western Union, Loew's, General Motors, Douglas, New York Central and Southern Pacific.

Bethlehem, U. S. Steel, Pennsylvania Railroad International Harvester and Chesapeake & Ohio lacked support.

A new record in industrial production, reported for July by the federal reserve board was of interest to holders of equities in war-connected concerns. The board said most of the increase reflected greater munitions output, although gains were noted for meat packing, cigaret manufacturing, oil, iron ore and coal.

RAF Returns To Flaming City as Danes Riot Against Nazis With U. S. Flags.

German soldiers were disrobed and red swastikas smeared on their cheeks. Danish patriots plundered the shops of German sympathizers.

Half a dozen Danish cities, in addition to Copenhagen, were reported under a state of emergency as the "people's revolt" mounted and the Danish government refused to yield the administration of justice to the Germans, who have demanded that saboteurs be tried under Nazi law.

On the Russian front, Soviet headquarters indicated the German retreat from Kharkov was turning into a rout.

The daily war bulletin, broadcast from Moscow, said Russian forces advanced both west and south of Kharkov, killing 2,000 Germans, and declared the Nazi command was squandering manpower in a vain attempt to stem the Soviet tide.

Red army spearheads were reported lashing out on the road to Poltava, 75 miles southwest of Kharkov and about halfway to the German "second wall" of fortifications along the Dnieper river.

Hitler's high command said the "big battle of defense in the east continues with unabated ferocity," but asserted that Soviet attacks collapsed.

Report Nazi Fighter Output Hard Hit

U. S. EIGHTH AIRFORCE HEADQUARTERS IN ENGLAND —(AP)—Thirty per cent of the Nazi day fighter production was destroyed in the American Flying Fortress raid on the Regensburg Messerschmitt plant Aug. 17, Maj. Gen. Harold L. George, air transport command chief, told a press conference today. He predicted that if the tempo of the present operations can be increased Germany's economic structure will fail by year's end.

Gen. George, who has been inspecting Eighth Air Force operations, said that such a collapse did not necessarily mean that Germany would be forced out of the war at that time, but explained that the economic structure "won't be able to function in a degree necessary to support the war."

"I feel that if the 'round-the-clock operations now being carried out (by the USAAF and RAF) can be continued with a reasonable increase in tempo the economic structure of Germany is going to fail by the end of the year," he declared.

Yanks End First Shuttle Bombings

A U. S. BOMBER BASE IN ENGLAND —(AP)— Haggard but happy and with great scorn for Nazi fighter opposition, American crews set their Flying Fortresses down here completing their first England-North Africa round-trip shuttle bombing in which they blasted aviation targets around Bordeaux on the return trip.

The trip home was quiet, with a minimum of flak, the men said, and they termed what little fighter opposition they met "the Germans' second team." They had bombed Regensburg, Germany, on the way out, meeting heavy opposition on that part of the mission.

There was little doubt the men had been in North Africa. They climbed out of their battle-scarred planes wearing fezzes and carrying Arab daggers and other souvenirs.

Report Nazis Trying To Stay on Top

BERN, Switzerland — (AP) — Heinrich Himmler's appointment as German minister of the interior was interpreted by Swiss dispatches from Berlin today as a move to keep the Nazis on top to the bitter end.

The Berlin correspondent of the Neue Zuercher Zeitung, declaring the appointment had a "meaning which cannot be misunderstood," described the move as "a warning to all wishing to start new political trends."

Coming on the heels of the season's first mass aerial raid on Berlin, Himmler's elevation was seen as a possible indication that morale in Germany is lower than hitherto had been believed.

RUBINOFF IS SUED FOR $50,000

Cited in Alienation of Affections Case.

CHICAGO —(INS)— David Rubinoff, noted violinist, was named today in a $50,000 alienation of affection suit, seeking to test the constitutionality of the Illinois statute outlawing heart balm actions.

The suit was filed in federal district court by James P. Byrnes, attorney for John Ganek, 41, of Chicago, who charges that Rubinoff "wilfully and maliciously" destroyed and alienated the affections of the plaintiff's wife, Margaret, 26.

Rubinoff was being sought by deputy marshals who are attemping to serve him with a summons.

Predicts Heavier Blows at Japan

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN THE SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—(AP)—Undersecretary of War Robert P. Patterson arrived at Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters today and shortly thereafter predicted that "blows of increasing strength" will not be long delayed in the war against Japan.

He said the twin Allied offensives in the Solomons and on New Guinea were playing a vital part in bringing the Japanese nearer surrender.

In a statement Patterson noted that the United States was producing more than 7,000 planes a month. And he pointed out that "growing striking power" was being sent to the Southwest Pacific war zone.

all the requests to resurface streets and alleys, Hebel said.

The Mansfield Asphalt Paving company yesterday finished resurfacing Park avenue west from West Park drive to Linden road and today was constructing the base for widening South Main street and Lexington avenue at the intersection of the two streets.

The construction company will start next week on the final lap of the city's summer street resurfacing program, City Engineer W. C. Statler said.

Work probably will be started Monday on East Third street between Diamond street and Franklin avenue. Other jobs remaining to be done are South Mulberry street from Park avenue to West First street, West First street from Mulberry to Main streets, and West Second street from Main to Mulberry streets.

Statler said it would require about a week to complete the work if the weather is favorable.

Scheduled for resurfacing later in the summer are East Fifth street from Main to the Pennsylvania tracks and all of South Main street and Lexington avenue.

THEATERS

Henry Aldrich Film.

The boy with man sized-troubles, Henry Aldrich, has himself a few that would stump even Mr. Anthony. You'll find Henry and his bundle of woes in Paramount's comedy, "Henry Aldrich Swings It," which starts today at the Madison. Jimmy Lydon will be seen as Henry, Charles Smith as Dizzy, supported by John Litel, Olive Blakeney, Mimi Chandler and Vaughan Glaser. Henry's headaches are set to music this time—classical music, which he insists upon swinging. He forms a swing band and looks for outside engagements. The second feature is "Hitler's Madmen."

"We Are the Marines."

Louis D. Rochemont, who produced "We Are the Marines," March of Time's full-length film made in collaboration with the U. S. Marine Corps, is a former naval officer, a fact which contributed considerably to the sincerity and accuracy of the picture now showing at the Ritz. Producer de Rochemont sought to show the Marines as they would wish themselves to be known, in a serious light, in the full comprehension of the great and dangerous part they are playing in America's war.

"The McGuerins."

Max Baer's whiskers caused a peck of trouble on the lot while the picture, "The McGuerins From Brooklyn," was being shot. It is now showing at the Park. The ex-world heavyweight champion's beard grows so fast that, despite the fact he shaves every morning, he has to remove his makeup at noon and shave again. The whiskers push right through the grease paint. Also, playing at the Park for the last day, is "Hangmen Also Die," with Brien Donlevy.

As Danes Rioted Against Nazis In Copenhagen

This clash between anti-Nazi demonstrators and German troops is one of the increasingly numerous riots which have broken out in Copenhagen and other areas of Denmark as the Danes, encouraged by Allied successes, give vent to their resentment of their Nazi overlords. The rioting has continued despite pleas of King Christian X and threats of reprisal by the Nazis.

council at Mackinac Island, Michigan.

The five points of Kelland's program:

First zone of safety: a trusteeship composed of the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China to administer "the territories and people and economy of our enemies, the bankrupt nations of the earth, and of other nations who shall find themselves in similar plight by reason of the war. France would be admitted to full trusteeship when able to function as a great power.

Second: A concord among the victor nations "for offensive or defensive joint action directed against any nation threatening to breach the peace."

Third: "A permanent defensive alliance between the United States and Great Britain" which "shall provide that the two great democracies, the two great English-speaking nations, shall act as one in case of attack upon either by any nation or combination of nations . . . permanent and openly declared to the world."

Fourth: "A concord, an entente among the nations of North America and the nations of South America—between Canada, the United States on the north and our sister republics of the southern continent . . . both military and economic. . . . A policy of American solidarity against any non-American nation threatening the territorial rights of any American nation, large or small."

Fifth: "As our fifth and final zone of safety we must possess, by friendly negotiation if we may, by occupation if we must, those points, those islands, those bases which will perfect the fortification of the United States. . . . What we acquire we must fortify. We must create naval bases, flying fields, fortresses imposing in strength. Not to be held as threats against the peace of any nation, but as guarantees of the peace of our own nation."

In presenting the fifth zone, Kelland said:

"Even the most rabid global thinker can not charge isolationism or improper nationalism if at last, in fifth place, I bring up the safety and security of our own country—our safety and security individually; if, finally, I desire as a citizen of the United States to take some selfish thought as to our own people, our own broad lands and lakes and rivers and mountains. If I suggest a fifth zone of safety it is as insurance of our own house against fire."

who was similarly charged, told reporters she was "stunned."

Pointing out that she and her husband were born in the United States, Mrs. Thomas said "I refuse to believe that there is a word of truth in these charges against him."

Dr. Thomas pleaded innocent. Miss Buchanan-Dineen and Mrs. Theresa Wassertauer Behrens, 44, born in Yugoslavia of German parents, stood mute and innocent pleas were entered for them. U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd ordered all held in $50,000 bond for examination next month.

The fourth defendant, Seaman Bertrand Steuart Hoffman, 27, was in FBI custody in New York.

Friends Surprised At Spy Arrest

FRESNO —(U.P.)— The arrest of Dr. Fred William Thomas, 44, at Detroit on charges of giving war information to Germany, caused surprise to his friends in this community where he was born.

Mrs. Elizabeth Thomas, 77, his mother, heard the report in a radio broadcast shortly after the arrest by the Federal Bureau of Investigation yesterday, but would make no comment. She was reported ill.

He last visited his home in November to attend the funeral of his father, Charles Thomas, a farmer.

Thomas was born in the house where his mother still lives near Chili, in Coshocton county. He attended Halifax high school and then went to high school at Baltic, in Tuscarawas county.

He pleaded innocent yesterday to the charges and bond was set at $50,000. He was charged with obtaining information as to the number and location of certain plants of the Western Electric company in Ohio, manufacturing war materials.

charged with political activities now are serving as Republican committeemen or ward leaders, but that 36 of the classified employes had resigned political jobs on Aug. 7 or soon thereafter.

Their report said charges of political activity in the highway department were printed in the Cleveland Press Aug. 12 and 13.

Two other classified highway department employes resigned their highway jobs while there was no record of political activity by 15 classified employes named in the newspaper's stories, Miss Jones said.

Miss Jones said a thorough job check would be made of the 34 unclassified employes still serving as political committeemen to determine whether they should be classified among classified employes.

Of the 36 classified highway employes who resigned political jobs, 26 resignations came during the week the newspaper charges were published and six others resigned the week before.

3 DRAW FINES

Three traffic violators were fined in Mansfield municipal court today.

They were: Oscar E. York, fined $10 and costs, for traveling 54 miles per hour on Park avenue west; Frank Schwartz, fined $10 and costs, failure to have operator's license; Wayne Uhle, trucker, fined $15 and costs for speeding on U. S. Route 42.

DEATH PLEASANT SAYS DYING BOY

Parolee Dies In Arms of Patrolman Who Shot Him.

AKRON — (AP) — Muttering "death is a pleasant thing," a 17-year-old reform school parolee died early today in the arms of a policeman who shot the youth as he fled from the officer.

Patrolman Griffin Greenert said he was cruising near a gasoline station when he noticed John W. Raff attempting to break into the establishment. The youth started to run and the patrolman fired a shot at him, wounding him in the hip and abdomen.

Greenert and other policemen found the youth in an alley. While waiting for an ambulance, Raff died in Greenert's arms.

that one did not meet specifications, leaving no question about letting the contract to the Fred M. Link company of New York, higher bidder of the two.

With a new chief, the city's fire department may also get two new pieces of fire fighting equipment before long.

Mayor Locke said an application would be filed today for a War Production board priority for the purchase of another 750-gallon pumper. If the priority is granted, the pumper probably will be available sometime next winter, the mayor said.

The city already has promised delivery of an $18,250 aerial ladder truck by late September, the mayor said. The new ladder truck will replace a clumsy out-moded piece of equipment now in use at Central station.

The pumper the city wants to buy will be like one that was delivered to the city early this summer and added to the Central station equipment.

real and lasting peace" could justify the sacrifices of the present war, the chief executive said the post-war world was discussed in Quebec, but he offered no details of the discussions except to say they probably were duplicated in dozens of nations and hundreds of cities all over the world.

Mr. Roosevelt was optimistic about the movement of the war in the Pacific, turning his scorn on those Americans and Canadians who wanted to withdraw our forces from the Atlantic and Mediterranean when the Japanese first invaded "a few rocky specks in the Aleutians."

He supported his scorn by recalling the recent elimination of Japanese forces from Kiska and Attu.

"We have been told," he added, "that Japs never surrender: their headlong retreat satisfies us just as well."

Mr. Roosevelt devoted much of his address of about 15 minutes to Canada and her participation in the war, praising the manner in which Canadians and Americans have fought "shoulder to shoulder" as they worked and played together in peace.

Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King, in introducing the chief executive, hailed him as "undaunted champion of the rights of free men and a mighty leader of the forces of freedom in a world at war."

King forecast a substantial advance toward complete victory as a result of the Quebec conferences where he was host.

Avoiding any detailed description of advance plans for the war, the president devoted himself largely to the broad moral principles of the four freedoms and the Atlantic charter.

He promised that unanimous action in clearing the world of savage outlaws and keeping them "under heel forever" would achieve "freedom from fear of violence."

Professing "everlasting" anger at those who attack the Atlantic charter and the four Freedoms, Mr. Roosevelt said these same critics—if they had lived a century and a half ago—would have attacked the Declaration of Independence, and before that, the Magna Charta.

"And if they had lived several thousand years ago they would have derided Moses when he came from the mountain with the Ten Commandments."

Mr. Roosevelt concluded his speech with a few words in French directed at Canada's large French-Canadian population. Calling Canada a nation founded on a union of two great races, Mr. Roosevelt said "the harmony of their equal partnership is an example to all mankind—an example everywhere in the world."

Speaker J. Allison Glen of the house of commons and Speaker Thomas Vien of the senate responded with brief addresses after the president concluded.

Mr. Roosevelt's host was Canadian Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King who yesterday received the praise of the president and Churchill for the success of the Quebec meetings.

The president was accompanied on his trip to the Canadian capital by Harry L. Hopkins, his principal advisor, Rear Admiral Wilson Brown, naval aid, Rear Admiral Ross T. McIntire, surgeon general of the navy and his personal physician, and Admiral William D. Leahy, his chief of staff.

Churchill and the president said good-bye last night for the present—they plan new conferences in the not too distant future—at the Citadel where they worked together for eight days. Churchill will fish until Saturday when he also will make a radio speech elaborating on the "Declaration of Quebec."

Ottawa was turned out in carnival array. Large pictures of Mr. Roosevelt adorned thousands of windows. A half-holiday had been proclaimed to permit working people to see the president. The show was the biggest public display in which Mr. Roosevelt has participated since the war began.

The scene was in direct contrast to the somber confines of the Citadel at Quebec where Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill, in a press conference yesterday said their decisions would not be disclosed in their true meaning until activated with ammunition. But they offered this outline of their meeting.

1—Plans for a speed-up in the Pacific war and greater aid for China.

2—New Allied blows against the Axis in general. They indicated these might come at any time.

3—A tri-partite meeting with Russia possibly before the end of the year.

4—Another Anglo - American meeting before the end of the year and conferences at more frequent intervals than in the past.

5 — Approval of unanimous recommendations on sea, air and land operations on the part of the combined chiefs of staff and their corps of between 300 and 400 expert aides. This was in addition to what Mr. Roosevelt and Churchill described as agreement on "the political issues underlying or arising out of the military operations."

6—Impending recognition of the French committee for national liberation.

An authorized British spokesman explained later that among the political questions considered were the principles to be observed in administering areas freed from enemy domination.

"It has, of course," he said, "been recognized that the system which we have adopted with success on Italian territory cannot be applied to friendly territory and the problem will not be the same in cases where there is already a legitimate government."

Welcomes FDR as Undaunted Champion

OTTAWA — (AP) — Welcoming President Roosevelt to Ottawa, Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King said today that Canada honored him "as an undaunted champion of the rights of free men, and a mighty leader of the forces of freedom in a world at war."

Mackenzie King said the newly concluded Quebec conference would "mark a further advance towards final victory."

"We are firmly convinced," he said, "that in the continued close association of the British commonwealth of nations and the United States of America lies the surest guarantee of international peace, and of the furtherance of the well-being of mankind throughout the world."

his life. We were boyhood friends and I certainly will miss him personally," Chairman Stewart said.

"The board of commissioners will also miss his services. He was most cooperative and his judgment on various matters before the board were of great help to us other members."

Commissioner Shoup expressed similar views adding that the county board "has certainly lost a valuable member."

A life-long resident of Mifflin township, he was born in 1886 in the same house where his father was born. He lived there until the time of his death operating his 80-acre farm in addition to his duties as commissioner.

He was a member of the Farm Bureau and the Grange and headed civilian defense activities in the county until his recent resignation.

Surviving are his daughter, Mrs. Helen Peterson, and son, Donald, both of Mifflin township.

The body has been removed to the Finefrock funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

HELL AND HIGH WATER

By William McLeod Raine

(Copyright, 1943)

CHAPTER IV

Bob Lee was shoeing one of the wagon horses when Curt Simson rode into the yard.

"Hell has done broke loose in Georgie," Curt announced. "Hightower got into a jam with Sam Hickory and killed him."

Lee stared at him, weighing the news, he asked. "Was Cle hurt?"

"He was wounded. I dunno how bad. He rode away hell-for-leather with a passle of Hickorys shooting at him.

"How did it happen?"

"I wasn't there. All I know is what the Hickorys, Sims and Cal Judson told me later."

"Cal Judson? Was the rookus at Four Corners?"

"Yes." Simson explained about the mover and his sick child. "Seems like Cle walked right into a bunch of those hell-raisin' Hickorys not knowing they were anywhere near. Those skunks say Cle drew off and killed Sam, after which they tried to arrest him but he got away."

"What does Judson say?"

"No more than he has to. But he's fixing to back up the Hickory story, looks to me."

Bob nodded. "No need to ask you about the little skunk Sims. He told Cle and me he would get even with us for pouring out his Choctaw beer. Now he's got his chance. He'll swear on a stack of Bibles that Cle started this. Then if the Hickorys rub out Cle his testimony will kinda justify them."

"That's right."

"Nobody else see the fight?"

"Only the mover, a bird called Todd, the kind of guy who dassent call his soul his own."

Bob took off the blacksmith's apron. "Let's see if J. A. is home."

He was not. Willie May said he had ridden down to the south pasture to see the calf cut. "What's wrong?" she asked.

"We didn't say anything was wrong," Lee answered.

Her smile was derisive. "You're shouting it louder than words."

Lee thought he might as well tell her. Everybody would know it soon. "Cle Hightower killed Sam Hickory at Four Corners. They wounded him, but he got away."

"Where is he?"

"I don't know, but I have to find him."

"Was he badly hurt?"

"We don't know. Will you tell Mr. Broderick I'm out looking for him?"

"I don't believe Cle Hightower started this trouble," Willie May said.

"I'm dead sure he didn't, but they may hang it on him."

Simson had given Lee two comforting details. One was that Cleburn had not ridden like a man wounded. The other was that the Hickorys had returned from the chase without getting him. Hightower would get in touch with his mother as soon as he could, Lee thought.

She lived on the Middle Boggy near Atoka. When Lee reached her small farm he found her making butter. Though now past 50 her figure was erect and her step light. There was in her face a serene poised beauty.

"I have looked for you," she said simply.

He was pleased. She had known he would not desert his friend.

"I came as soon as I heard," he answered. "Any news of Cle?"

"He is at Wapanucka. On his uncle's farm. You will be careful, so that none of the Hickorys may follow you there."

"Yes. Is he badly hurt?"

"He will be well soon. After that he will be tried."

Lee was startled. "Before a Choctaw court? But he killed in self-defense."

"Yes, but Jake Hickory got an indictment against him for murder. As soon as he is strong Cleburn will surrender and stand trial."

* * *

The young cowboy was troubled. He knew the unwritten law of the Nation, a life for a life. The old days when the kin of the dead victim were allowed legally to slay the killer were past, but the lex talionis was a deep inheritance of the tribe. If the evidence showed that Hightower had been the aggressor he would be sentenced to death—and the Hickorys would stop at no false testimony to secure a conviction. An escape could be arranged for Cleburn, but he was a full-blood and proud. Bob was afraid he would stay and face the consequences of his act.

Something of this feeling he confided to the Indian woman.

"He is the son of a Choctaw chief," she answered sternly. "He will not run like a coyote. He will stand up and face his enemies."

On his way to Wapanucka Bob stopped at the MacPherson farm. At sight of him the tears welled up in Jessie's soft brown eyes. She was only a quarterbreed, and had none of the stoic valor of Cleburn's mother. The tragic future overwhelmed her. The man with whom she was in love had been wounded and stood in danger of his life. The Hickorys would find and kill him, or contrive his destruction in court.

Bob took the girl's small hands in his and felt them cling to him for support.

"I'm afraid," she sobbed. "They are going to—to kill Cle. What shall I do Bob? How can I save him?"

"No," he told her. "They are not going to kill him. He has friends."

"The Hickorys are looking for him. Jake was here an hour ago trying to find where Cle is."

"He didn't find out?"

"No. Father was here. He told Jake he didn't know. He didn't know. But Jake as good as told him he was lying." Her voice lifted to a cry of despair. "They mean to destroy him one way or another."

"They would like to sure enough. But don't you worry, Jessie. He has been in worse spots than this before now and came through all right."

Bob found Cleburn's cousin Ridge Billee, sitting at the door of his father's house with a long rifle across his knees. The JAB rider dismounted and sauntered forward.

"If you're hunting a deer, Ridge, you ain't liable to get one while you are squatting on your hunkers," he said with a grin.

"A wolf, not a deer," the Indian said. "And I no hunt him. I just be ready. Maybe he hunt Cle."

Lee passed into the house. Hightower sat propped up in a bed with his shoulder bandaged.

"How, Kilkenah!" Bob said, addressing his friend by his native name.

A bullet had gone through the fleshy part of Cleburn's shoulder. Doctor Taylor had promised him that he would be as good as new in a week or two if he did not let himself get in the way of more slugs.

"The only way to avoid that is to get out of the country," Bob said.

"The Nation my country," Hightower answered. "I stay here."

Lee was annoyed at the other's obstinacy. "Stay here and get framed by the lies of the Hickory's," he flung back.

"Maybe. I do not know. But I stay."

Bob realized he was beaten. One could not reason with the Indian pride. The point of view of a Choctaw was not the same as that of a white. It could not be changed by argument. Cleburn would die rather than be disgraced.

Next day Bob sent Jessie MacPherson in to see the wounded man. She ran swiftly to the bed, knelt down beside it, put her arms around her lover and kissed him. Bob closed the door and saw no more. But when Jessie came out of the room half an hour later one look at her told him she had not succeeded in changing Cleburn's resolve.

Lee went back to the ranch and revealed his failure to Mr. Broderick. The rancher saw in the shooting the revival of an old debate that might effect the ultimate survival of the Five Nations. He rode back with Lee to Tuni's farm and offered to get a criminal lawyer from Fort Smith but Hightower said he wanted his cousin, who had studied law, to defend him.

"The jury won't get the truth," Broderick told his rider bluntly. "This thing has got all tangled up with politics. Sugg has been working against you. Not that he has anything against you personally. He wants the Nations taken over by the United States. You're just a pawn in his game. That mover has disappeared. As Bob says, Sims is a snake waiting to strike. Judson has always been for opening up this country to settlement. He hasn't the guts to stand up and tell the truth with all the Hickory gang lisening to him. You haven't a witness in your favor. What you need is a spell-binder."

The Indian said. "No. My cousin speak straight talk." He laid a hand on Lee's shoulder. "You good friend, but our ways not your ways. Me Choctaw, you white man."

Broderick nodded assent. "All right, Cle. A man has to decide for himself what is right."

On their way home they stopped at Boggy Depot for tobacco Simson had asked Bob to bring him. They came out of the trading post to find Jake and Bart Hickory and Dyke Sims eyeing the brands on the JAB horses.

"You wouldn't find it an easy brand to blot," Lee said lightly.

Jake Hickory, whirled round, fingers sliding to the butt of the revolver at his hip. He glared at the boyish cowpuncher, and there boiled up in him hatred out of all proportion to the cause of quarrel between them. The first time their eyes met he had known he did not like this light-stepping arrogant Texan.

"So it's you," he snarled.

Broderick intercepted before Bob could answer. "Take your hand from that gun, Hickory."

Jake's slaty eyes slid from Lee to the cattleman. A moment ago it had been in his mind to shoot out his grudge against the cowboy. He was not so sure now. Broderick had a reputation for taking care of himself in an emergency. Moreover, he was too important in the Territory for an outlaw to tackle. If J. A. was declaring himself in, it might be better to wait until he was not present.

"We've got nothing against you, Mr. Broderick," growled Jake. "Your Cle murdered our brother. We'll settle it with him and his pal here."

"Don't be a fool," snapped the ranch owner. "This boy had nothing to do with that. Hightower will be tried this week. Drop your hand from that pistol."

Dyke Sims cut in hastily, "That's right, Jake. "Don't stir up trouble before the trial."

"Or any time, with any of my outfit," Broderick added.

"Yore riders started this," Bart retorted. "We aim to see it out."

"If you kill any of my boys, I'll see justice done," answered Broderick. "I'm warning you. Lay off the JAB outfit."

Jake swore. "That's poor talk, Broderick, after one of yore gunmen shot my brother. To hell with yore threats. I'm gonna get this bird here as soon as we have fixed Hightower. Come on, Bart."

He strode to his horse, Bart at his heels. They pulled themselves to their saddles and rode away.

Sub Fighter on the Ohio

THE submarine campaign of the Axis took a beating on the banks of a famous American river a short time ago.

The occasion was the launching of the "SOHIOAN," most powerful Diesel-engined towboat ever to ply the historic waterways of the ol' Mississipp'.

This brute-powered 160-footer brings crude oil up from far-away fields to Ohio every ten days—in a way that U-boats can't get at it.

And every trip this blunt-nosed warrior makes, it pushes enough oil to fill four solid miles of railroad tank cars!

Hitler wouldn't like that.

But we of SOHIO do. Every time we hear the reassuring snort of this mighty mite's whistle at the journey's end—we know it means that eight more trainloads of oil have been delivered and many tank cars have been freed for other wartime uses.

And it may reassure you to know that the "SOHIOAN" is only one of eleven towboats in Standard Oil of Ohio service, working day and night to help move crude oil nearer to the fighting front.

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 25, 1943.

When those Japs landed on Kiska they found it very cold —so the Yanks made it hot for them.

According to an OPA explanation, "California grape wine means grape wine produced in the state of California"—which raises the question, "What is Canadian bacon?"

If you aren't convinced that this country is undergoing "a great change" note the complacency with which many people are accepting the promotion of a fourth term for president.

Much Done, Little Told, at Quebec

LITTLE that is new or informative came out of the Quebec conference, insofar as the formal statement by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill is concerned.

The press conference, held on the terrace of the Citadel at Quebec, looking out over the St. Lawrence, seemed more of a pleasant get-together than designed to release any important news. No questions were permitted, which was quite natural under the circumstances.

Mr. Churchill made it clear that the war against Japan had an important spot in the discussions, giving the distinct impression that it was for this reason Russia had not been invited to send a representative.

Attendance of T. V. Soong, Chinese foreign minister, at the final stages of the conference as representative of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek, makes it reasonable to suppose that intensified action against Japan will include provisions to make hard-pressed China a much more aggressive factor in the war in the near future, as opportunity opens to send more military equipment into that country.

Further assurance was given that full reports of discussions, "so far as they affect the war against Germany and Japan, will be sent to the Soviet government," evidencing recognition of the fact that Russia is not engaged with the United States and Great Britain in the war against Japan and that Marshal Stalin would be placed in an awkward position by being included in a conference largely devoted to that subject.

What does come out of the Quebec conference—and something that it is gratifying to note—is a tone of greater assurance that the United Nations have now gained sufficient military superiority over the Axis powers to maintain offensive action, and that victory, while it may still be a long way off, is being steadily moved toward.

Mental Ailments Vary Greatly

ONE DIFFICULTY about segregating people with twisted minds, who may cause trouble if allowed to run loose, is that it is almost impossible to draw the line between the harmless and dangerous among them.

Definitely insane persons are found so by psychological tests which prove them to be incapable of making adjustments to normal life. But many people of psychopathic personality are on a borderline. Confining them in the wrong kind of institution does not help them nor does it help society. Some of these persons, while eccentric, can earn a living and get along fairly well without hurting anyone else. Others flare up into dangerous attitudes. Still others are not insane in the technical sense at all, but are still abnormal.

Too little is known about all these cases. Too little public money is spent in finding out. There are not enough psychiatric social workers to follow up patients allowed to go home on visits, or when they seem so nearly cured that they can, perhaps, complete final adjustment by living a more normal life than any mental hospital can provide.

Only in recent years has it been learned that proper treatment can cure many cases of mental illness. And at that, more is known by the medical profession than can be applied, because of public unwillingness to face the facts of an unpleasant subject.

Simplified Tax Structure Promised

CONGRESSIONAL tax experts are said to be preparing a bill to simplify the entire tax structure. This is good news, especially as it is said to make easier both the administration of tax laws and the reporting required of taxpayers. The bill is to be introduced into congress in January.

These experts have been working on the whole tax structure for two years and believe it can be simplified. Their plan would eliminate much work for the Internal Revenue Bureau, and much, also, for taxpayers. One point especially deserves approval—the idea that persons whose taxes are paid by wage or salary withholdings shall not be required to file any returns themselves.

Another gain may be made by providing a simple return to be used by those individuals who still have to make one. Still another point is that of giving corporations and other business organizations relief from much of the petty tax accounting which they have been previously obliged to do.

Anything which makes taxes simpler to take care of and easier to understand will be popular with the average citizen.

Plenty of Sugar 'Soon', They Say

EVERY little while there's a hint from someone in authority that "there'll soon be plenty of sugar," and that the allowance for family use will be increased.

Extra sugar for canning has been available right along, subject to arbitrary rulings as to its use and a picayunish limit on the amount to be used for home jelly-making.

Sugar shortage in the United States was clearly due to the government policy of restricting production of sugar beets, in order to protect Cuban sugar cane producers and processors, and if shipments of the stored surplus in Cuba is now arriving in sufficient quantity to meet needs, this would seem a good time to abandon rationing red tape instead of waiting until the end of the canning season.

Want Women as Traffic Cops

WOMEN are wanted by Uncle Sam to make themselves unpopular—maybe. The job is that of policewoman in the city of Washington, and the privilege of handing $2 traffic tickets to pedestrians who cross against red lights is the way by which they get to be unpopular.

Maybe some women will want to give it a try. The job pays $2,200 a year and is under civil service, in case any intelligent young woman between the ages of 25 and 35, of good character and in good health, wants to find out about it.

Pity the poor hay fever sufferer who "has to keep his nose to the grindstone."

WHO SAYS WE HAVE NO SECOND FRONT?

Fall of Kharkov Menaces Entire Battle-Front of Hitler In Russia

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

KHARKOV AND KISKA—alliteratively pleasant to the ear, and a fine brace of birds for the Allied bag.

The Red army's capture of the great industrial and rail center of Kharkov by storm undoubtedly will be recorded by historians as one of the key victories of the Russo-German war.

The fall of this strategic Ukrainian city on Hitler's right flank vastly increases the menace to his entire battle-front in Russia. It brings him dangerously near to the day when he will have to withdraw his forces to fresh positions—if indeed he isn't already falling back towards the line of the Dnieper.

Fierce and bloody fighting is in progress, as the Nazis strive to hold and the Reds fling themselves on the invaders with fresh fury in an effort to capitalize the capture of Kharkov.

The Russians announce a deep break through on the Donets river front to the south, and if they can develop this they might precipitate a debacle.

However, that contingency is at the moment just a wishful thought and we shouldn't rush out into no-man's land in advance of the Red army. The Germans are master soldiers and one would expect them to be able to maintain their line if they have to retreat.

Their chances are doubly good since the fall rains will start in two or three weeks and are likely to slow the Russian advance greatly.

Still, after the rains will come the freezing, and then the Reds will continue their assault, as they did last winter when they drove the Hitlerites back over vast areas. Hitler's position at the best isn't enviable, and if the Allies are able to invade western Europe this fall, anything can happen to the all highest.

WHAT a change from a year ago, when Hitler drove clear through to Stalingrad and almost forced the mountain passes into the lower Caucasus! He started from Kharkov then—and broke his back at Stalingrad. From the moment of his failure there, his fate was sealed. The energy he wasted in trying to capture that industrial city, which takes its name from Stalin, represents one of the greatest blunders of the war.

So much for Kharkov. The affair of the missing Jap garrison of Kiska is one of the strange stories of the war. The perpetual fogs of the Aleutians still shroud in mystery how it was that when the American and Canadian forces swarmed up the rocky shore to do battle, they found this important base as empty as Emperor Hirohito's honor.

Still, what matters is that the Nipponese have gone. We don't know how they went, but we know why they went. They were driven from the island by the terrific aerial and naval bombardments which had been going on for over a year. During that period American bombers blasted the island with over 5,500,000 pounds of bombs.

It was utterly hopeless for the Japs to try to hold the position, and so they shelved their suicide-code for once and did the smart thing by clearing out. I think we are making the mystery too complicated when we try to get more than that out of it.

The meaning of this victory? Lt. Gen. John L. DeWitt, commander of the western defense command, gave one of the highlights when he declared that "the reoccupation of Kiska has cleared our shortest highway to the Japanese empire."

This means that from Alaska, via the Aleutians, the long arm of our air power will be able to reach out and smash the Nipponese homeland.

But the reclaiming of Kiska does more than that. It has cleared the Japs out of all North American territory. The danger of any major attack on Alaska is now slight. We have removed a menace to our communications with Russia from Alaska. By the same token we have cleared the route to Japan's northernmost naval base of Paramushiro in the Kurile islands.

America and Canada can breathe a lot more comfortably with Kiska once more in our hands.

CROW can't be on the ration list or Henry Wallace wouldn't be eating it the way he is. Henry has come out and admitted that he meant to omit 99 per cent of American business organizations in that recent speech in which he blasted big business as fascist, corrupt and self-seeking.

He now says he was referring only to a small minority but says it is vital for all Americans to see through the propaganda of certain big corporations. Well, Henry, I figure they see through it all right. And they ain't slow in seeing through the propaganda from certain other points either.

According to reports, government officials have ducked out of Berlin as a matter of safety. The only kind of bombing they can stand is one-way bombing. It unnerves 'em to think that what can happen to other people can happen to them.

There's a report Goebbels' wife has arrived in Switzerland as well as Marshal Goering's. Maybe the ladies are getting things ready. You can always trust a woman's intuition on when it is time to move.

You wouldn't say that the Nazis who take it on the run from Berlin are just conducting a highly successful disengagement, would you?

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

WELL we are in for another winter of flat heat.

The OPA has had twelve months in which to consider the folly of measuring a house in square feet, instead of cubic feet, for fuel oil allotments.

And it has come to a brilliant decision.

Houses will still be measured in square feet.

My house has a one-story living room, my neighbor, three doors away has a studio or two-story living room. The floor space in both is exactly alike.

He gets the same amount of fuel oil to heat his two-story living room that I get to heat my one-story room . . . and I don't get enough.

He can go down to the local rationing board, tell his story all over again, and maybe get some extra oil. But why should we have to? Why haven't last year's blunders been corrected by now?

* * *

Thought for the day: If it concerns oil, it's confused.

American Experts Believe Axis Collapse May Begin In Balkans

WASHINGTON — Because collapse of southern Europe caused the kaiser to fold up with such speed in the last war, the U. S. official microscope is now fixed on these same countries more intently than ever.

In September, 1918, it was Bulgaria, Turkey, Austro-Hungary which, one by one, made separate peace with the Allies, leaving Germany, her back to the wall, fighting alone.

Since history may repeat, here is a survey of how U. S. experts find conditions in the key occupied countries:

Rumania — Most likely of all countries to follow Italy and throw off its pro-Nazi leaders. Dictator Antonescu, seeing the handwriting on the wall, has cooled off to Hitler's demands, has gone so far as to inform the Allies through neutrals that he has rebuffed Nazi calls for new Rumanian troops, that he would be open to Allied overtures.

Bulgaria—Is close behind Rumania in its anxiety to escape Nazi clutches. The Bulgarian underground, always strong, has almost come out into the open and is "executing" more and more pro-Nazi Bulgarians. King Boris has turned down German requests that Bulgarian troops be used on the Eastern Front, warning that Bulgarians would desert to the Russians. Recently he is reported so worried about internal conditions that he has packed his bags and is ready to flee at the first sign of uprising.

Hungary—Premier Kallay has ordered the return of all Hungarian troops from the Russian front, explaining to the Germans that they are needed at home to protect against an Allied invasion of the Balkans. Actually, Hungary is much more afraid of a Russian break-through in Eastern Europe and would prefer to do business with the British and Americans.

Jugoslavia—Although the Chetniks and Partisans still are rowing between themselves, there has been a recent tendency to calm this feud. The downfall of Mussolini and the capture of Sicily has increased the prestige of anti-Axis forces and caused both Serbs and Croats to jump on the Allied bandwagon. Italian troops in Jugoslavia would desert wholesale if they were not afraid of being massacred by the people they have tried to rule.

Albania—Italian rule in Albania is at the point of collapse, with guerilla bands operating freely.

Greece—Open rebellion among the Greeks is being put down by the Germans ruthlessly. They are ousting the Italians from Greece and are feverishly strengthening the Greek Isles against Allied invasion. There is a well-organized guerilla movement in Greece, especially operating against troop trains at night. Neutral travellers will not ride German troop trains if they can help it.

Passive Central Europe.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA — The Czech underground has been pretty well broken up by brutal reprisals and by shipping male Czechs to Germany to work. The Czechs are in a position to do very little against the Axis.

Poland — Poland and occupied Russia are the testing-ground for the worst inventions of the Gestapo. There is a pro-Communist underground, but not much can be expected in Poland until after the Nazis are in actual rout.

Austria — The Austrians are gaining hope and are now more openly anti-Nazi. However, there still does not seem to be any organized plan of resistance.

Denmark — This is the Nazi showcase. The Danes are treated better than any other conquered peoples. But even so they are contemptuous of the Nazis.

Norway—Because of the continued resistance of Norwegians of all ranks, that country is suffering more than any other except Greece. German troops in Norway, aware of the hatred leveled against them, are said to be the most dissatisfied of all German troops. Quisling's dwindling supporters are mainly thugs and ex-convicts. German corruption has become so bad in Norway that it has led to disputes between the German civil and military commanders.

Holland—The Dutch are in a state of passive resistance with sabotage practiced by the underground. There is almost no support for the Dutch Quisling, Mussert, who is held in open contempt.

Inside Germany.

GERMANY—Travellers coming out of Germany into neutral countries report that morale is similar to that of Germany in 1918. The country is swept with rumors, pessimistic rumors, particularly about the bombings of the Ruhr and Berlin.

Himmler, apparently deciding that the home front was more and more threatening, has stationed picked, loyal young thugs with artillery and machine gun nests in the main squares and streets throughout Germany. There is every determination to prevent a repetition of 1918 and the collapse of the home front.

The German people, however, remain jittery. They look apprehensively at the great numbers of foreign workers in their midst and fear they will cut German throats when disorders begin.

The German people are beginning to be reconciled to Allied victory, some even anticipate it with cheerfulness. However, they still feel that Germany can manage a political victory, in other words, keep all her own territory and prevent an army of occupation. Russia troops are what they dread most.

The middle class, once the idol of the Nazis, has been wiped out by manpower mobilization. Business is completely in the hands of cartels headed by prominent Nazis. Left-wing Germans are talking about saving their skins by setting up a Communist proletariat, but a lot of these Communist stories appear to be circulated purposely in neutral countries by Goebbels' agents.

However, there is no evidence of German troop collapses yet. They are well-fed, well-equipped, well-treated and will fight until the situation is comparatively hopeless. Then, as in 1918, they will probably quit.

ERNIE PYLE — Roving Reporter

Some Impressions Gained In Sicily As Work of Destruction Is Viewed.

SOMEWHERE IN SICILY—(By Wireless)—At one time in central Sicily we correspondents were camped in a peach orchard behind the country home of an Italian baron. Apparently the baron had skadoodled, as nobility is wont to do, before the fighting started as German and Italian troops had been occupying the place before we came.

The baron had built himself a big stone house that was pink and palatial with a marvelous view over miles of rolling country. It had the usual royal peacocks strutting around but not a bath in the place. The dining room ceiling was hand painted and the staircase gigantic, yet the royal family used porcelain washbowls and old fashioned thundermugs. It was the perfect shabby rococo domicile of what H. R. Knickerbocker calls "wretched aristocracy of Europe."

While the baron lived in this comparative luxury his employes lived in sheds and even caves in the big rocky hill just back of the house. They looked like gypsies.

When we arrived the interior of the castle was a wreck. I've never seen such a complete shambles. Every room was knee deep in debris.

The enemy had thoroughly looted the place before fleeing. And servants gave us the shameful news that most of the looting and destruction was done by Italian soldiers rather than German.

They'd gone through the house shelf by shelf, drawer by drawer. Expensive dishes were thrown on the tile floor, antique vases shattered, women's clothes dumped in jumbled heaps, pictures torn down, medicine cabinets dashed against walls, dressers broken up, wine bottles dropped on the floor, their contents turning the trash heap into a gooey mass as it dried.

It was truly the work of beasts. We tiptoed into the place gingerly, suspecting booby-traps but finally decided it had not been fixed up. Then some of us rummaged around the debris seeing if anything left was worth taking as souvenirs.

As far as I have seen Americans have been good about not looting. Usually they take only what is left from the Germans and Italians' destruction or what the inhabitants voluntarily give them. All I could salvage were a few pieces of lace from the baroness' sewing room floor.

Then we decided the dining room was the least messy place in the building so we set to with grass brooms and shovels and water and cleaned it up. Thus it became our press room. The Signal Corps ran wires from a portable generator and gave us light so we could work by night.

ONE DAY I was writing while all the other correspondents were away and a stray soldier peered in after having wandered in astonishment through the jumbled house.

He asked, "What is this place?"

I told him it was the former home of an Italian baron. His next question was so typically American you had to laugh despite a little shame at the average soldiers' bad grammar and lack of learning.

He said, "What is these barons, anyway? Is they something like lords in England?"

To avoid a technical discussion, I told him that for all practical purposes they were somewhat along the same line. He went away apparently satisfied.

OUR orchard bivouack behind the castle was fine except for one thing. That was the barnyard collection, which surrounded us. About an hour before dawn we were always awakened by the most startling orchestra of weird and ghoulish noises ever put together. Guinea hens would cackle, ducks would quack, calves bawl, babies cry, men shout, peacocks jabber and turkeys gobble. And to cap it all a lone donkey at just the right dramatic moment in this hideous cacophony would let loose a long sardonic hee-haw that turned your exasperation into outlandish laughter.

The baron's servants were a poor looking lot, yet they seemed very nice. Their kids hung around our camp all day, very quiet and meek. They looked at us so hungrily we couldn't resist giving them cans of food. We tried to teach them to say grazia or thanks in Italian but with no success. One day some of us correspondents were doing our washing when one of the Sicilian women came up and took it away from us and washed it herself. When she finished we asked her "How much?"

She said, "Nothing at all." We said, well, then, we'd give her some food. She said she didn't expect any food, that she was just doing it for us free but we gave her some food anyway.

Stories like that are countless. The army engineers tell me how the Sicilians would come up where they were working, grab shovels and start digging themselves and refuse to take anything for it. Whatever else you can say about them the Sicilians don't seem lazy. One soldier summed it up when he said, "After living nine months with Arabs the sight of somebody working voluntarily is almost too much for me."

A Farmer's Diary

By CALVIN A. BYERS

Mother Pheasant

I HEARD a flutter and then notes of wild birds, as I passed along the edge of a sassafras thicket. Far down at the foot of the steep roadside bank, water flowed, and spread a fan-shaped bit of sand. As I peered through the base of the sprouts, I saw that a lovely mother pheasant had led her young to a choice sand bath.

She was no larger than a bantam hen with a coat of vari-colored brown. Her chipper youngsters, about half grown, had darker markings. Even here I kept a constant eye upon the brood for fear they would disappear, so naturally did they blend with the shaly bank and the withered grass. I counted only six.

It seemed the youngsters were reluctant, or did not understand what their mother expected. So she gave a demonstration. She laid on her side right in the middle of the sandy patch and wallowed, ruffling her feathers. The youngsters watched her flop over from right to left and repeat the process.

When she got up, without a single note, two followed her example and soon were having a merry time, with sand flying into the air. The entire six were at it, presently, tumbling from one side to the other.

By their very movements, I could surmise how much the itching skin beneath the dainty feathers was being soothed. The sand penetrated and scratched and drove out mites and lice that often kill an entire bird brood. Six seemed a small flock. Likely prowling animals and vermin might have killed part of the original hatch.

As I lay on the bank not more than a dozen feet away, I heard their soft sleepy notes of conversation. They climbed cautiously up the bank to the shelter of a bunch of bluegrass and there, right along the road, the wild mother spread her wings and covered every member of her family. She seemed to know that cars would pass, and people would walk that way, and that wild animals would not dare molest her in so open a place. She had learned to use wisely what was close at hand —a waving bunch of bluegrass, when night was near.

U. S. SOLDIERS RUN RAILROAD

'Sandusky Road' In England Serves American Supply Base.

(By International News Service)

AN AMERICAN SUPPLY BASE, Somewhere in England—They can chew tobacco and run a railroad with the best in the world, these soldiers who operate the 17-mile-long "Sandusky Road" at this 1,000-acre American army supply base.

They should be able too, at that, considering that most of them cut their baby teeth in the service of some American railroad, starting with their commanding officer, who is "chairman of the board of directors, president and general manager" of the line the men have named in his honor.

According to army records, he is Major T. J. Sandusky, of 901 East 42nd street, Indianapolis, Ind., and he was employed by the New York Central for 32 years before coming to England as an officer of the Transportation Corps, U. S. A.

Major Sandusky was terminal train director for the Central in Indianapolis and has been here almost a year, during which time he has built the Sandusky R. R. into what would, under other circumstances, be a paying line.

Sergeant Frank E. Schmitz of Wheaton, Ill., whom Major Sandusky describes as "a real railroad man, and a damned good noncommissioned officer," and who is referred to by his comrades as the "Bull of the Woods" is general yardmaster, having graduated to his present position by way of having been a conductor for the Chicago, Elgin and Aurora railroad back home.

From 250 to 300 cars of material are handled by this army railroad daily, and, with their contents ranging from 32 ton tanks, 8,000-pound "slum clearance" bombs, heavy guns, trucks and even locomotives to butter, powdered eggs, flour and vanilla extract, some idea of the work these men are doing may be obtained.

THEY REPENT

SEATTLE —(INS)— Two would-be thieves decided as they sat in city jail that henceforth they will examine the contents of all stolen merchandise.

One, a 35-year-old laborer, and the other, a 24-year-old cook, tried to sell another person's suitcase in a pawnshop. They asked $5 for the bag and its contents.

When the pawnbroker opened the case to evaluate the contents, he found three $20 bills. He promptly called police.

Farmboy Sailors Delight In New 'Barn Canteen'

NEW YORK —(INS)— "Gee, the navy's swell, sure," said a freckled, tow-headed boy to a visitor to a big naval training station in upstate New York. "But I'd give my right arm just to spend one day back home on my Dad's farm."

The visitor was Lulu Bates, who sings old time blue songs and rhythm ballads on the radio.

"Do you really mean that?" said Miss Bates.

"I certainly do," said the sailor. "And there must be five hundred other guys right here, who came off the farm, who feel the same way."

"Sailor," said the singer, "you're going to have your wish and so are your mates. It won't be back home—but it'll certainly be a day on the farm."

And there was born the Barn Door Canteen, for Lulu owns and operates a 200-acre farm, which has nothing of the country club atmosphere, but which is a going agriculture enterprise. So now, each week-end, at least a dozen of the homesick farm boys come over to indulge themselves in a veritable bucolic binge — riding horses, driving tractors, milking cows—and, as sailors are wont to do, whether at sea or on land, shooting the breeze.

'POP' OLDEST ARMY PRIVATE, SHOWS THE 'BOYS' HOW AT 52

(By International News Service)

SOMEWHERE IN PANAMA—"Pop" oldest private in the U. S. army, has been recommended for promotion.

He is George Keller, 52, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a combat soldier, who not only holds his own with younger men but makes many of them step to keep pace with him.

Pop entered the army Oct. 7, 1942 by special permission from Washington, after he had passed a physical examination with flying colors.

"I just wanted to come back and do my bit," he said.

Keller, a veteran of the last war, was working for the Brooklyn Union Gas Co., when he applied for service. He has a brother and three sons in the service. His wife is dead.

Pop took basic training at Fort Eustis, Va., and the younger men there couldn't believe that this tough soldier was in his fifties.

"He did everything we did and did it better than a lot of us," said one of his admiring and much younger associates.

Pop subsequently volunteered for overseas service, passed the necessary physical and was sent to Panama, where he is in a coast artillery outpost.

Five feet, seven inches tall, he runs the obstacle course and goes through all the other tough commando training of the rest of his regiment.

"I kept in pretty good trim in civilian life," he commented. "I walked to and from work every day and I did a lot of skating and swimming, which kept me in pretty good trim."

"Keller really is 'Pop' to the men," said a soldier. "When we get in a jam, he always figures a way out for us. When we need advice, he has it and it is always sound. He's not only a good soldier but a sort of chaplain and Dad to the outfit."

The one thousandth Liberty Ship was launched on May 25 1943, at New Orleans.

AMERICANS ARE STILL THE BEST NOURISHED PEOPLE ON EARTH—and there's a Reason

Our food may be stretched out these days to share with the peoples of the United Nations, but thanks to new scientific developments in animal feeding, our feathered and four-legged armies are being greatly improved in quality and propagation.

To tiny yeast cells goes much of the credit, because brewer's yeast is the source of the vitamins used to fortify feed mixtures. Now, when you eat meat raised on vitamin-fortified feeds, you're getting nutrition plus.

Plan Post-War Sessions for Church Women

Mrs. D O. Meese, president of the Richland County League of Women Voters, will meet with squad leaders from the various churches of the city tomorrow at 2 p m. at the First Presbyterian church. This will be the second in the series of meetings, sponsored by the league, for post-war planning.

Any church women interested in the open discussions are urged to attend.

The objective is to arouse interest in and awaken Mansfielders to an intelligent sense of responsibility for government and especially foreign policy.

A quiz has been prepared by the National League of Women Voters which is designed to encourage people to make up their minds what they want for the United States after the war and how they want our government to go about getting it.

Enameled Ware Will Last for Many Years

Even though your porcelain enameled cooking utensils are in good condition today, keep an eye to the future. Make them last as long as you can. It's the little accidents which occur each day unnoticed that take a high toll in cooking ware. And constant abuse finally results in damaged utensils.

Without realizing they are doing it, it is common for homemakers carelessly to bang their enameled ware against the faucet or to strike the rims sharply with spoons. At the time, the utensil may show no mark, but later on, this carelessness proves to be detrimental.

Frequently, too, pans are allowed to boil dry. This, in itself, is bad for any utensil, but when taken from the stove and dashed into cold water, the effect is even worse. Sudden temperature changes introduce severe shock, affecting the strength of the utensil.

To avoid as nearly as possible having foods boil dry, use moderate heat with enameled ware. Because enameled utensils conduct and retain heat efficiently, the flame may be lowered as soon as the contents of the pan have reached the boiling point. Should more water be needed during the cooking process, it is best to heat it before adding. When this is done, the over-all cooking time is shortened, besides avoiding a "shock" on the utensil. The temperature of the food is not lowered by the addition of a hot liquid.

When cleaning porcelain enameled ware, simply wash it like china. Coarse abrasives should never be used, since scouring is unnecessary. Should food be baked or coked onto an enameled pan, do not attempt to scrape it off with a sharp metal instrument. Instead, let the utensil soak in hot water to loosen the stubborn particles.

By giving porcelain enameled ware reasonable care, its life can be lengthened considerably. A little thought about cooking utensils each day means longer service and satisfaction.

Guard Eyes for Beauty

By BETTY CLARKE
(AP Beauty Editor)

You can't burn the candle at both ends and have beautiful eyes—and your eyes just won't be beautiful until you've learned how to care for them.

Eight hours' rest each night is the minimum requirement for the girl who wants to take a home course in eye beauty. Those fine lines that etch themselves around the eyes are a sure indication of lack of sleep or poor health.

Scaly, red or granulated lids are signs of an inadequate diet. Spinach, kale, beet greens or other dark green leafy vegetables and a yellow vegetable, such as the carrot, are rich in vitamins and should be included in the diet every day.

An eye-bath of boric acid should precede the evening make-up after exposure to sun and wind. It will also help ease those tired pink lids that are the result of eye strain, a common ailment now that so many women are working at desks or on assembly lines.

A good exercise for the eyes is to sit in your room, selecting a spot midway up the right wall, another on the left wall. Select a mark on the ceiling and another on the floor Then, with a quick, sliding motion of the eyes, glance from left to right, then up and down. Be sure that your glance is on the spots you have selected.

BEFORE: Nice eyes, but— AFTER: Eye makeup helps.

Mascara will help to enhance the beauty of any healthy eye—but be sure you use it right. To apply mascara, the brush should be swept across the upper lashes to cover each individual hair, then brushed upward to distribute evenly. Finally the lashes should be pressed upward for that natural curl.

A model never applies mascara to the lower lashes. If she wants to make her eyes look larger she will draw a fine line with an eyebrow pencil out from the corner of her eye about a quarter of an inch.

A clear sparkling eye is a healthy sign, as well as the first requisite of beauty.

Novices May Can Tomatoes With Success

Now's the time to "put up" all those tomatoes from your Victory Garden. It will more than repay you for the time and effort expended, for tomatoes are the easiest of all vegetables to can. You don't need elaborate equipment. Just use your porcelain enameled kettles—the big ones.

Enameled ware is your best bet because it is acid resistant, besides being recognized as one of the most sanitary of cooking wares. The sanitary benefits of porcelain enameled utensils enter the foods to be canned when it is being pre-cooked, there is danger of spoilage.

If you don't have a water bath canner for the processing, use a deep drawn enameled kettle. It must be large enough to hold the jars without crowding and deep enough so that the water reaches two inches over the tops of the jars. This is necessary for the circulation of water all around the jars.

In canning tomatoes, it is important, first of all, to use only the firm, ripe ones which have no decayed spots. Dip them in boiling water for a minute or so; then plunge them into cold water. They may be peeled more easily if this is done.

Quarter the tomatoes and heat to boiling in a porcelain enameled pot. Be sure they are heated through and through. Pack the hot tomatoes immediately into sterilized jars, adding a teaspoon of salt for each quart. Seal and proces at once.

To process tomatoes, simply heat water to boiling in your water bath canner or largest and deepest enameled kettle. If you do not have a rack, a few strips of wood will do to allow the free circulation of water under the jars as well as around and above them. Place the jars of hot-packed tomatoes in the boiling water and cover. They should be processed for five minutes, starting when the water comes to a rapid boil.

At the end of the processing time, remove the jars and let them cool. Be careful to protect them from drafts to avoid breakage. When they have cooled, inspect each carefully to see that the seal is perfect. An imperfect seal will lead to spoilage and waste.

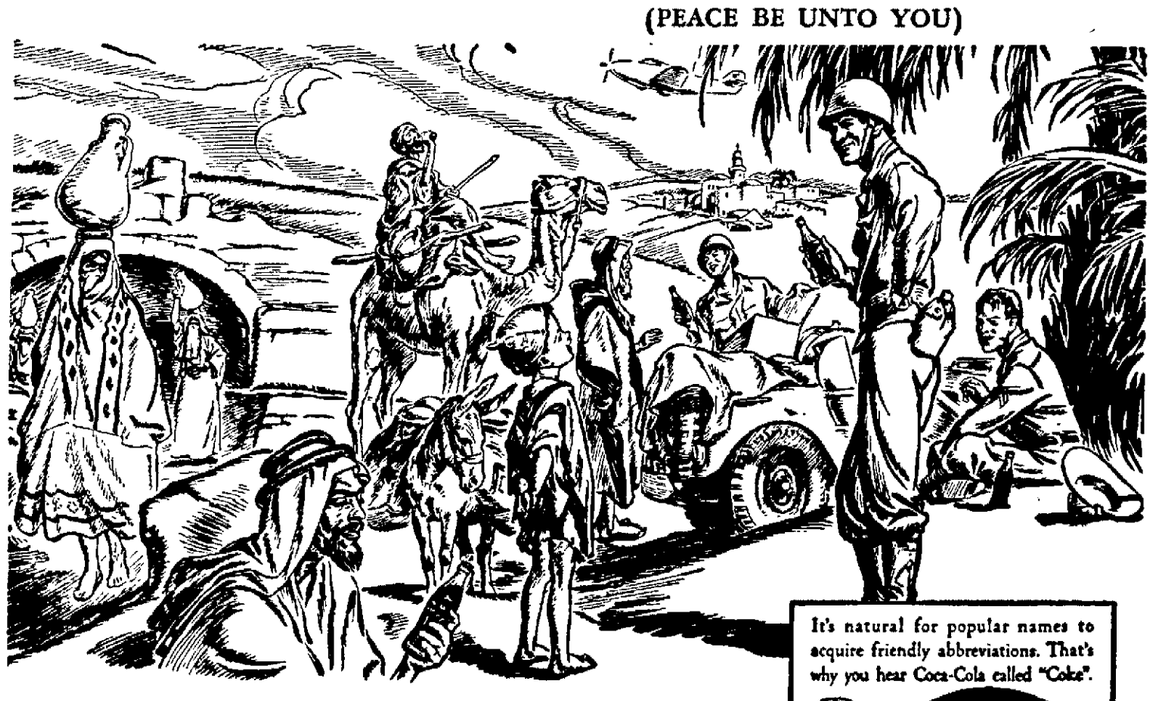
Have a Coca-Cola=Sa-LAM-oo a-LAY-koom
(PEACE BE UNTO YOU)


...or how Americans make pals in Palestine
Peace be unto you, says the hospitable Moslem when he greets a stranger. Have a "Coke", says the American soldier in return, and in three words he has made a new friend. It's a phrase that works as well in Haifa as in Harrisburg. Around the globe Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes—has become the high-sign between kindly-minded people.
It's natural for popular names to acquire friendly abbreviations. That's why you hear Coca-Cola called "Coke".
